Benautheyt à nauw, i. strictus, angustus. Gr. στενότης, ητος à στενός i. angústus. It signifieth most commonly in the common lawe, a compulsion in certaine reall actions, whereby to bring a man to appearance in court, or to paie debt, or duty denied. The effect whereof most commonly is, to driue the party distreined to repleiue the distresse, and so to take his action of trespasse against the distreiner, or else to compound neighbourly with him for the debt, or duty, for the which he distreineth, In what cases a distresse is lawfull, see ¶ the new termes of law. The Ciuilians call it (pignorum captionem) Brissonius de verbor. sign. lib. 14. This compulsion is by ¶ Britton cap. 71. diuided into a distresse personall, and distresse reall: distresse personall, is made by surprising a mans mooueable goods, and deteining them for the security of his appearance to the suite, and to make him plaintiffe. A distresse reall, is made vpon immooueable goods, as the Grand cape, and petit cape, and thus it is interpreted by ¶ Hotoman. de verb. feudal: verbo Districtus. This differeth from an attachment in this point (among others) that a distresse cannot be taken by any common person, without the compasse of his owne fee. ¶ Fitzh. nat br. fol. 904. except it be presently after the cattell or other thing is driuen, or borne out of the ground by him that perceiueth it to be in danger to be distreined. See also ¶ Mynsing. in the Chapter. licet causam. 9. extra de probationibus. nu. 5. & Zasius in his 16. councell. nu. 47. Distresse in the former signification is diuided first into finite, and infinite. Finite is that which is limited by law, how often it shall be made to bring the party to triall of the action, as once or twice ¶ Old nat. br. fol. 43. Distresse infinite is without limitation vntill the partie come: as against a Iury, that refuseth to appeare, super certificatione Assisæ, the processe is a (Venire facias) habeas corpora) and distresse infinite ¶ Old nat. br. fol. 113. Then it is diuided into a grand distresse ¶ anno 52. H. 3. cap. 7. which Fitzherbert calleth in latine magnam districtionem, nat. br. fol. 126. and an ordinary distresse. A grand distresse is that, which is made of all the goods and cattels, that the party hath within the County ¶ Britton. cap. 26. fol. 52. But see whether it bee sometime not all one with a distresse infinite. Idem fol. 80. With whom also the statute of marlbridg seemeth to agree ¶ Anno 52. H. 3. cap. 7. & cap. 9. & cap. 12. This play also is a type and modell of a well ordered commonwealth, for as in a state politique which is well gouerned, there are diuers degrees, and orders of personages, one subiect vnto another, and all to the higher power, whom they seeke all ioyntly to defend, so in this play there is the King, or Mónarch, the Nobilitie, the Clergie, the gentrie and commonaltie: It is also a perfect platforme of militare discipline, the two Kings, like to great Mónarches incamped one against the other, the field pitched is the chesse boord, the checkers are like so many tents, or pauilions, the men on each side the two armies, wherein the Kings are personally present with their Queenes, as they now fought for life, honor, crowne and all, each Queene on either side like Pallas goddesse of battaile, in presence ready to succor her King, and thereby the more to incite and stir vp the souldiers: now for battaile array and order of the field, it is there also set downe. in the vauntguard, or forefront of the battaile, are placed the footemen or pawnes, and those strongly backed by the troupes of horsemen, or knights, after which follow the Bishops, both attending the King and Queenes person, and encouraging the souldiers. In the rereward are placed the Rookes, which like valiant captaines, if all the rest faile, are ready to succour the King: these keepe their squadrons and march from corner to corner in time of eminent danger, they change places and ensconce the King, and oppose themselues to the force of the enimie, for the King himselfe goeth but seldome into the field to fight in person, but is alwayes defended by others.

Dutchie Court. b ☞ Dutchie Court, is a Court wherein all matters appertaining to the Dutchie of Lancaster are decided, by the decree of the Chancelour of that Court. And the originall of it was in Henry the Fourth his daies, who obtaining the Crowne, by deposing Richard the Second, and hauing the Dutchie of Lancaster by descent in the right of his mother, he was seized thereof, as King, and not as Duke. So that all the Liberties, Franchises, and Iurisdictions of the said Dutchie, passed from the King, by his grand Seale, and not by Liuerie, or Atturnement, as the possessions of Eueiwicke, and of the Earledome of March, and such others did, which had descended to the King by other ancestors then Kings. But at the last Henry the Fourth by authoritie of Parlament passed a Charter, whereby the possessions, liberties, &c. of the said Dutchie were seuered from the Crowne. Yet Henry the Seuenth reduced it to his former nature, as it was in Henry the Fifths daies. ¶ Cromptons Iurisdict: fol: 136. The Officers belonging to this Court, are the Chancellour, the Atturney, Receiuer generall, Clerke of the Court, the Messenger. Beside these there be certaine Assistants of this Court, as one Atturney in the Exchequer, one Atturney of the Dutchie in the Chauncerie, foure learned men in the Law, retained of Counsell with the King in the said Court.

Enditement. b ☞ Enditement, (Iudictamentum) commeth of the French (Enditer, i. deferre nomen alicuius, iudicare) to indict, to accuse, to appeach, or from the Greeke ἐνδείκνυμι, because Mr. Lamberd will haue it so, Eirenar. lib. 4. cap: 5. pag: 468 It signifieth in our common Law, asmuch as (Accusatio) in the Ciuill Law, though it haue not in all points the like effect. West: parte: 2. symb: titulo Inditement) defineth it thus. An Inditement is a bill or declaration made in forme of Law, (for the benefit of the Common-wealth) of an accusation for some offense, either criminall or penall, exhibited vnto Iurors, and by their verdict found and presented to be true, before an Officer hauing power to punish the same offence. It is an accusation, because the Iury that inquireth of the offence, doth not receiue it vntill the party that offereth the bill, appeare so farre in it as to subscribe his name. It differeth from an Accusation in this, that the Preferrer of the Bill is no way tied to the proofe thereof vpon any penalty if it be not proued, except there appeare conspiracy. Wherefore though mooued by Mr. Westes authority, I call it an Accusation: yet I take it to be rather (denunciatio) because it is of office due by the great enquest, rather then of a Free intent to accuse. Of this you may reade Sir Tho: Smith: de Repub: Angl: lib: 2. cap: 19. and Stawnf: pl: cor: lib: 2. cap: 23. 24. 25. 26. &c. Enseigne.

3774-2 an Enseigne or bánner. G. Enséigne. P. Ensénha. I. Inségna. H. Enseña, Insigne. L. Insígne, vox Lat: latiùs patet quàm Gallica, vt obseruauit ¶ Nicod: enseigne enim Gallis propriè notam aut signum aliquod significat quo res aliqua denotatur, insignia autem Lat: aliud est. Sunt qui putant ensigne appellatum à Lat: insignia in plurali vt enim insignia familiam illorum ostendunt, qui ea gestant: sic signum, seu vexillum ducem suum militibus notat. Some will haue this French word Enseigne which signifieth a Standart, ensigne, or Banner, to be derived from the Latine word insignia, which signifieth armes of Noble-men or Gentle-men which giue any coate, for as these armes doe shew the difference of Houses and those that beare them are knowen to what house they belong: So the Standart, Enseigne or Banner, is a note to the souldiers to what Captaine they appertaine, ¶ Nicod: apud quem vide plura. Vi. etiam a Banner.

Enseigne-bearer.

b an Enseigne-bearer. G. port'-enseigne, i. pórtans insígne, porteguidón à portér, i. gestáre, portáre, férre, & guidón, i. Vexillum, insigne, quod Hispan: Guión, i. vexillum: ita autem appellatur, à Guiár, i. dirigere, ducere, conducere, ducit enim vexillum totum exercitum, eoque stante, stat exercitus, procedente verò procedit, Guión taketh the name from guiar which signifieth to guide or direct: because the guión or standerd leadeth and guideth the whole Army, when that standeth still, the Army staieth, and when that goeth forward, the Army marcheth. H. P. Alférez, alféres, nomen est Arabicum, à verbo ferese, quod significat equitem esse addito al articulo Arabico, equites enim & non gregarij milites huic officio, & ministerio assignari solent, ¶ Sebastian: de Cobarruu: quod autem dicit ferese significare, equitem esse, illud confirmat lingua Hebræa. Heb: enim פרש parasch est eques, dictus à pungendo calcaribus equum. Hinc Arab: Perese, & Hisp: Alféres. I. Alfiére, vel ab Hispan: vel contract: à Lat: aquilifer: olim enim aquilæ præcipuè figúram in vexillis depíctam gestáre solébant, sic Romanorum signa aquilam habuerunt in medio depictam, Banderáro, Banderále: à bandiéra, i. insígne, vexillum, Stendardiéro: à stendárdo, i. insigne, vexillum. B. Vaen-drigh, vaen-dragher, à vaen, i. vexillum, & dräghen, i. gestáre. T. fänrich, à fänlin, i. vexillum, & richten, i. régere, ordináre, Paner-herr, q. vexilli héros, vel dominus Páner-meyster, i. vexilli magister. L. Signifer, à feréndo signo, hoc est, vexillo nomen hábet, vexillárius, ij, m, qui vexillum gestat. Vexillifer, à feréndo vexillo, aquilifer, qui aquilam fert, imaginifer, qui imperatoris imaginem in vexillo portat. Cantabrarius, qui cantabrum, contábrum aliaue signa fert, vt exponit ¶ Kilian: Gr. σημειοφόρος, σημεῖον, i. vexillum, insigne, & φέρω, i. féro, gésto.

c E'nsigne or énseigne. Vi. E'nseigne.

3775 to Enstáll. G. Installér, &c. I. Installáre, à Gr. ἐνστέλλειν, i. mittere, ponere, ornare, quasi in throno dignitatis & honoris ponere, mittere, collocare, & stola ornare. Vi. to Install, & Inthrone.

b an Entáiler or engráuer. G. Entailléur. I. Intagliatóre. H. Entalladór. P. Entretalhadór. Vi. an Engráuer.

Entayle quid?

3779 ☞ Entaile (feudum talliatum) commeth of the French entaillé, i. incisus, and in our common Law is a substantiue abstract, signifying fee taile, or fee intailed. Littleton in the second Chapter of his booke draweth fee taile from the verbe Talliáre, which must come from the French taillér, i. scindere, secáre. And the reason is manifest, because fee taile in the Law is nothing but fee abridged, scanted, or curtelled (as you would say) or limited and tied to certaine conditions. Taille in France is metaphorically taken for a tribute or subsidie. Vi. Lupanum de Magistratibus Francorum, lib. 3. cap. Talea. Vi. Fee, & Tayle.

3780 ☞ Entendement, commeth of the French Entendemént, i. intellectus, ingenium. It signifieth in our Common Law so much as the true meaning or signification of a word or sentence. See of this ¶ Kitchin fol: 224.

3781 to Enter, or goe in. G. Entrér. I. Entráre, Intráre. H. P. Entrár. L. Intrare, frequentatiuum ab Introire, vel, vt nonnullis placet, q. Intrò se dare, Introire, ab intrò & ire. k ☞ Enterpléder (Interplacitáre) is compounded of two French words, éntre, i. inter, and pledér, i. disputáre: and it signifieth in our Common Law as much as cognitio præiudicialis in the Ciuill Law: that is, the discussing of a point incidently falling out, before the principall cause can take end. For example: two seuerall persons being found heires to land by two seuerall offices in one Countie, the King is brought in doubt to whether liuerie ought to bee made: and therefore before liuerie be made to either, they must enterpleade, that is, formerly trie betweene themselues who is the right heire. ¶ Stawn: prærog: cap: 19. 3872 * the Esseni. I. Esséni. H. los esfénos. L. Esséni, vel Essæi. Genus Sectariorum apud Iudæos, de quibus sic ¶ Iosephus: Esseni omnia affirmant fato subiecta, omniaque fieri eius decreto, animam hominis immortalem esse, & pro iustitia pugnandum vsque ad mortem, nulla sacrificia cum populo celebrant, imò à cœtu hominum reliquorum se continebant peculiari quadam sanctimoniæ præsumptione, qui studio omni terram colebant & exercebant, opes etiam suas in vsum communem conferebant, nec seruos habentes, nec possidentes vxores, atque adeò Monasticam quandam vitam ducentes, lapidum, herbarum, ac animantium naturam valdè studiosè inquirentes, apud quos potandi, edendique modus olim saturitate definiebatur, &c. The Esseni were certaine Sectaries or Philosophers among the Hebrewes, which referred euery thing to destinie, that deeme the soule to be immortall, that would haue men fight vntill death in defence of Iustice, that sacrifice not with the rest of the people, or scarce conuerse with them, much giuen to tillage and husbandrie, and highly prizing puritie of life, and sanctitie of conuersation, who liue in common, and neuer marie, and keepe no seruants, saying that seruants are wicked, and a wife cause of discord: their life is monastique, and themselues giuen much to contemplation of the nature of herbes, plants, stones, and beasts: in diet, meat and drinke, moderated by saturitie, much addicted to morall philosophie, not caring for wealth, or hoarding vp treasure, as ¶ Iosephus and ¶ Philo haue reported. De nominis origine variæ sunt & diuersæ autorum opiniones: quidam à verbo עשה gnalah, i. feci, dici volunt, vt Essæi sint quasi operarij, ¶ Fung: sed nulla planè probabilitate: alij à Syr: אסא asa, i. sanauit, אסא ese, i. medicus: medicos enim fuisse eos studiosos patet ex supradictis, ideóq; etiam vocatos fuisse eos θεραπευτὰς, à θεραπεύειν, i. curare, curam morbi suscipere, remedia morbo adhibere. ¶ Scalig: tamen in libro de emendatione temporum θεραπευτὰς appellatos esse dicit, quasi Dei cultores, vtramque enim significat vox Græca θεραπευτὴς. & deducit à Syriaco חסי chasi, quod sanctum significat, chasi autem fit ab Heb: חסיד chasid, quod apud Hebræos celeberrimum fuit omnium piorum cognomentum, atque hinc Esseni, siue Essæi, & Hasidæi, vt docet ¶ Drusius in libro de Hasidæis, quem vide. Esseni.

3873 * Essex, the name of a Countie or shire in England, so called, as it were, East-seax, because it was the Easterne habitation of the Saxons. ¶ Verstegan. Essexia nomen est Comitatus in Anglia, ita dicitur quasi East-seax, erat enim Orientalium Saxonum habitatio & sedes, ab East quod Orientem significat, & Seax, i. Saxo. Essex.

3874 ☞ to Essoine or excuse the person absent by an oath. G. Essoynér, Essonniér, Exoniér, à Gr. ἐξόμνυσθαι, i. cum iureiurando aliquid excusare, ab ἐξ, i. ex, & ὄμνυμι, i. iuro. Est enim Exoniare iureiurãdo excusare eum qui iudicio non adest, aut euocatus præsto non est. ¶ Nicod: Hinc Exomanos vulgus appellat vulnere aut mutilatione causarios, qui detractare iure militiam possunt. ¶ Bud: Vi. to Excuse. Essoine.

b ☞ Essoine (Essonium) commeth of the French Essonié, or Exonnié, i. causarius miles, he that hath his presence forborne or excused vpon any iust cause, as sicknesse, or other incombrance. It signifieth in our Common Law, an allegement of an excuse for him that is summoned, or sought for to appeare, or answer to an action reall, or to performe suit to a Court Baron, vpon iust cause of absence. It is as much as Excusatio with the Ciuilians. The causes to Essoine any man summoned, be diuers and infinite, yet drawen to fiue heads: whereof the first is (Vltra mare) the second (De terra sancta) the third (De malo veniendi) which is also called the Common Essoine: the fourth is (De malo lecti) the fifth (De seruitio Regis.) For further knowledge of these I referre you to ¶ Glanuile in his whole first booke, and ¶ Bract: lib: 5. tract 2. per totum. and ¶ Britton ca. 222. 123. 124. 125. and to ¶ Hornes Mirrour of Iustices, li. 1. cap. des Essoines, who makes mention of some more Essoines, touching the seruice of the King Celestiall, then the rest doe, and of some other points not vnworthy to be knowen. Of these Essoines you you may reade further in ¶ Fleta lib. 6. cap 8. & seq. And that these came to vs from the Normans, is well shewed by the Grand Customarie, where you may finde in a maner all said, that our Lawyers haue of this matter, cap. 39. 40. 41. 42. 43. 44. 45.

c ☞ Essoines and Profers, Anno 32. H. 8. cap. 21. See Profer.

d ☞ Essonio de malo lecti, is a writ directed to the Shyreeue, for the sending of foure lawfull Knights to view one that hath Essoined himselfe de malo lecti. ¶ Register orig: fol: 8. b.

3875 to Establish. G. Establír. I. Stabilíre, Farstábile. H. Establecér, Establescér. P. Estabelecér. L. Stabilire, à stábilis, hoc autem à stando. Gr. βεβαιόω, à βέβαιος, i. stábilis. Vi. to Confirme.

b ☞ Establishment of dower, seemeth to bee the assurance of dower made to the wife by the husband or his friends, before or at mariage. And Assignement is the setting it out by the heire afterwards according to the establishment. ¶ Britton cap. 102. & 103.

Estandard. 3876 ☞ Estandard or Standard, commeth of the French Estandárt, or Estendárt, i. signum, vexillum. It signifieth an Ensigne in warre, as well with vs as with them. But it is also vsed for the principall or standing measure of the King, to the scantling whereof all the measures thorow the Land are or ought to be framed by the Clerke of the Market, Aulneger, or other Officer, according to their functions. For it was established by the Statute of Magna Charta, Ann. 6. H. 3. ca. 9. that there should be but one skantlin of weights or measures thorow the whole Realme, which is sithence confirmed by Ann. 14. Ed. 3. ca 12. and many other Statutes, as also that all should be fitted to the Standard sealed with the Kings Seale. It is not called a Standard without great reason: because it standeth constant and immooueable, and hath all other measures comming toward it for their conformitie, euen as Souldiers in field haue their Standard or colours for their direction in their march or skirmish. Of these Standards and measures, reade ¶ Britton cap. 30.

Vi. to Account.

Estople. 3879 ☞ Estopel, seemeth to come from the French Estoupér, i. oppilare, obturare, stipare, obstipare, to stoppe with a stopple, and signifieth in our Common Law, an impediment or barre of an action growing from his owne fact, that hath or otherwise might haue had his action. For example: A tenent maketh a feoffment by collusion to one: the Lord accepteth the seruices of the feoffee: by this he debarreth himselfe of the Wardship of his Tenents heire. ¶ Fitz: nat: br: fol: 242. K. Diuers other examples might be shewed out of him and ¶ Brooke b. Titule. ¶ Sir Edward Coke lib. 2. casu Goddard, fol: 4. b. defineth an Estopell to be a barre or hindrance vnto one to plead the truth, and restraineth it not to the impediment giuen to a man by his owne act only, but by another also, li. 3. The Case of Fines. fol. 88. a.

Estouers. 3880 ☞ Estouers (Estouerium) commeth of the French Estouér, i. fouére, to foster, and signifieth in our Common Law, nourishment or maintenance. For example: ¶ Bracton li. 3. tract. 2. cap. 18. num. 2. vseth it for that sustenance which a man taken for felonie is to haue out of his lands or goods for himselfe and his familie during his imprisonment: and the Statute Ann. 6. Ed. 1. ca. 3. vseth it for an allowance in meat or cloth. It is also vsed for certaine allowances of wood, to be taken out of an other mans wood. So is it vsed ¶ West: 2. ca. 25. Anno 13. Ed. 1. ¶ M. West: part: 2. symbol: tit: Fines, sect: 26. saith, that the name of Estouers containeth houseboote, hayeboote, and plow-boote: as if he gaue in his grant these generall words, De rationabili estouerio in boscis, &c. he may thereby claime these three.

3881 to Estrange or alienate. G. Estrangér, ex Lat: extráneus. Vide to Alienate.

Estreat. 3882 ☞ Estreat (extractũ vel extracta) commeth of the French Extraict, which among other things signifieth a figure or resemblance, and is vsed in our Common Law for the Copie or true note of an originall writing. For example, of amerciaments or penalties set downe in the rowles of a Court, to be leuied by the Bailiffe or other Officer, of euery man for his offense. See ¶ Fitz: nat: br: fol: 75. H. I. K. & 76. A. And so is it vsed, Westm: 2. ca. 8. Anno 13. Ed. 1.

3883 ☞ Estreis or Estrey (extrahura) in our Common Law signifieth any beast not wilde, found within any Lordship, and not owned by any man. For in this case, if it being cried according to Law in the Market Townes adioining, shall not be claimed by the owner within a yeere and a day, it is the Lords of the soile. See ¶ Britton ca. 17. See Estraies in the Forest, Anno 27. H. 8. ca. 7. New booke of Entries, verbo Trespás, concernant estrey.

Estrepement. 3884 ☞ Estrepement or Estripament (Estrepementum) commeth of the French word estropiér, i. mutilare, obtruncare: the which word the Frenchmen haue also borrowed of the Italians, or rather Spaniards, with whom Estropear signifieth to set vpon the wracke. It signifieth in our Common Law spoile made by the tenent for terme of life vpon any lands or woods, to the preiudice of him in the reuersion, as namely in the Statute Anno 6. Ed. 1. cap. 13. And it may seeme by the deriuation, that estrepement is properly the vnmeasurable soaking, or drawing of the heart of the land by plowghing or sowing it continually, without manuring or other such vsage as is requisite in good husbandrie. And yet (estropier signifying mutilare) it may no lesse conueniently be applied to those that cut downe trees or loppe them farther then the Law will beare. This signifieth also a Writ, which lieth in two sorts, the one is, when a man hauing an action depending (as a Foredome, or Dum fuit infra ætatem, or Writ of right, or any such other) wherein the Demandant is not to recouer dammages, sueth to inhibite the tenant for making waste during the sute. The other sort is for the Demandant that is adiudged to recouer seisin of land in question, and before execution sued by the Writ, Habere facias seisinam, for feare of waste to be made before he can get possession, sueth out this Writ. See more of this in ¶ Fitz: nat: br: fol: 60. & 61. See the ¶ Register orig: fol: 76. and the ¶ Regist: Iudiciall fol: 33.

b ☞ Exchequer (Scaccarium) commeth of the French (Eſchequiér, i. abacus, tabula luſoria, a cheſſe or checker bord) and ſignifieth the place or court of all receiptes belonging to the crowne, and is ſo termed, as I take it by reaſon that in ancient times, the Accomptants in that office vſed ſuch tables as Arithmeticians vſe for their calculations, for that is one ſignification of (Abacus) amongſt others. Polidor: Virgil: lib: 9 hiſtor: Angl: ſaith, that the true word in Latin is Scattarium, and by abuſe called Scaccarium. In myne opinion it may well ſeeme to bee taken from the Germane word (ſchatz) ſignifying as much as (Theſaurus) treaſour, or (fiſcus) And from this fountaine (no doubt) ſpringeth the Italian word (Zeccha) ſignifying a Mint: and Zecchérij aliàs Zecchiéri the officers thereunto belonging. Deciſ: Genuen 134. Mr. Cambden in his Britan: pag: 113. ſaith that this court or office tooke the name à tabula ad quam aſſidebant prooving out of Geruaſius Tilburienſis, whoſe words you may read in him. This Court is taken from the Normans, as appeareth by the grand Cuſtumary cap: 56. where you may find the Eſchequer thus deſcribed. The Eſchequer is called an aſſembly of high Iuſticiers, to whom it appertaineth to amend that which the Bailifes and other meaner Iuſticiers haue euill done, and vnaduiſedly iudged: and to doe right to all men without delay, as from the Princes mouth. ¶Skene de verbor: ſignificatione: verbo Scaccarium) hath out of Paulus Æmilius theſe words: Scaccarium dicitur quaſi ſtatarium, quòd homines ibi in Iure ſiſtuntur, vel quòd ſit ſtataria & perennis Curia, nam ceteræ Curiæ eſſent indictiuæ, nec loco, nec tempore ſtatæ: where hee ſaith alſo of himſelfe that in Scotland the Eſchequer was ſtable, but the other Seſſion was deambulatorie, before Iames the V. qui inſtituit ſtatariam Curiam, cùm antea eſſet indictiua: He addeth farder: Others thinke, that Scaccarium is ſo called à ſimilitudine ludi Scaccorum, that is the play of the cheſtes: becauſe many perſons meet in the chequer, pleading their cauſes one againſt the other, as if they were fighting in an arrayed battaile: Others thinke, that it commeth from an old Saxon word (Scatt) as writeth S[r]. Tho: Smith, which ſignifieth treaſure, taxations or impoſtes, whereof accompt is made in the chequer. This court conſiſteth as it were of two parts: whereof one is conuerſant eſpecially in the hearing and decyding of all cauſes appertaining to the Princes coffers anciently called Scaccarium computorum, as Ockam teſtifieth in his lucubrations: the other is called the receipt of the Eſchequer which is properly imployed in the receyuing and payment of money. ¶ Crompton in his Iuriſdict: fol: 105. defineth it to be a court of record, wherein all cauſes touching the reuenewes of the crowne are handled. The officers belonging to both theſe you may find named in Mr. Cambdens Britan: ca: Tribunalia Angliæ, to whom I refer yow. Execution. d ☞ Execution (Executio) in the Common Law signifieth the last performance of an act, as of a Fine, or of a Iudgement. And the execution of a Fine is the obtaining of actuall possession of the things contained in the same, by vertue thereof: which is either by entrie into the lands, or by writ, whereof see ¶ West: at large, part: 2. symb: titulo Fines, sect. 136. 137. 138. Executing of Iudgements, and Statutes, and such like, see in ¶ Fitz: nat: br: in Indice 2. verbo Execution. ¶ Sir Edw. Coke vol. 6. casu Blumfield, fol. 87. a. maketh two sorts of Executions, one finall, another with a (quousque) tending to an end. An Execution finall is that which maketh money of the Defendants goods, or extendeth his lands, and deliuereth them to the Plaintife: for this the partie accepteth in satisfaction: and this is the end of the suit, and all that the Kings Writ commandeth to bee done. The other sort with a (quousque) is tending to an end, and not finall, as in the case of (capias ad satisfaciendum, &c.) this is not finall, but the bodie of the partie is to be taken, to the intent and purpose to satisfie the Demandant: and his imprisonment is not absolute, but vntill the Defendant doe satisfie. Idem ibidem.

e ☞ Executione facienda, is a Writ commanding execution of a Iudgement: the diuers vses whereof see in the table of the Register Iudiciall, verbo Executione facienda.

f Executione facienda in Withernam, is a Writ that lieth for the taking of his cattell, that formerly hath conueied out of the Countie the cattell of another, so that the Bailiffe hauing authoritie from the Shyreeue to repleuie the cattell so conueied away, could not execute his charge. ¶ Regist: orig: fol: 82. b. b ☞ Executour, G. Executeur, I. Essecutóre, H. P. Execudór, (Exécutor) is he that is appointed by any man in his last Will and Testament to haue the disposing of all his substance according to the contents of the said Will. This Executor is either particular or vniuersall: Particular, as if this or that thing only be committed to his charge. Vniuersall, if all. And this is in the place of him whom the Ciuilians call hæredem, and the Law accounteth one person with the partie whose Executor he is, as hauing all aduantage of action against all men, that he had, so likewise being subiect to euery mans action as farre as himselfe was. This Executor had his beginning in the Ciuill Law, by the constitutions of the Emperours, who first permitted those, that thought good by their Willes to bestow any thing vpon good and godly vses, to appoint whom they pleased to see the same performed: and if they appointed none, then they ordained, that the Bishop of the place should haue authoritie of course to effect it, l. 28. C. de Episcopis & Clericis. And from this, time and experience hath wrought out the vse of these Vniuersall Executors, as also brought the administration of their goods, that die without Will, vnto the Bishop. Executour.

Exigent. 3950 ☞ Exigent (Exigenda) is a Writ that lieth where the Defendant in an action personall can not be found, nor any thing within the Countie, whereby to be attached or distreined, and is directed vnto the Shyreeue, to proclaime and call fiue Countie daies one after another, charging him to appeare, vnder the peine of outlawrie. ¶ Termes of Law. This Writ lieth also in an Indictment of felonie, where the partie indicted can not be found. ¶ Smith de Rep: Angl. li. 2. ca. 19. It seemeth to be called an Exigent, because it exacteth the partie, that is, requireth his appearance or foorthcomming to answer the Law: for if hee come not at the last daies proclamation, he is said to be quinquies exactus, and then is outlawed. ¶ Crompton Iurisd: fol: 188. and this Mr. Manwood also setteth downe for the Law of the Forest, part: 1. of his Forest Law, pa: 71. See the new booke of Entries, verbo Exigent.

Exigenter. b ☞ Exigenter (Exigendarius) Anno 18. H. 6. ca. 9. is an Officer of the Court of Common Pleas, of whom there be foure in number. They make all Exigents and Proclamations in all actions, where processe of outlawrie doth lie, and Writs of supersedeas, as well as the Protonotaries, vpon such Exigents as were made in their Offices.

3959 ☞ Ex parte latis, is a Writ that lieth for a Bailiffe or Receiuour, that hauing Auditors assigned to heare his Account, can not obtaine of them reasonable allowance, but is cast into prison by them. ¶ Regist: fol: 137. ¶ Fitz: nat: br: fol: 129. The manner in this case is to take this Writ out of the Chauncerie directed to the Shyreeue to take foure Mainpernours to bring his bodie before the Barons of the Exchequer at a certaine day, and to warne the Lord to appeare at that time. ¶ New termes of the Law, verbo Accompt.

Expectant. 3960 ☞ Expectant, is vsed in the Common Law with this word (Fee) and thus vsed, it is opposite to Fee simple. For example: Lands are giuen to a man and his wife in Franke mariage, to haue and to hold to them and their heires: In this case they haue Fee simple. But if it bee giuen to them and the heires of their bodie, &c. they haue taile and Fee expectant. ¶ Kitchin fol: 153. ¶ Matthæus de afflict: vseth the Adiectiue (Expectatiua) substantiuely in the same signification. Fides, ei, dict: à fio, quòd fiat quòd dictum est, ac præsertim vbi Fides pro fidelitate, quæ in promissis ac pactis seruatur, accipitur: vt testatur ¶ Cicer: offici: 2. & 3. & 4. de finibus & ¶ Augustin: Etym: tamen istud reprehendit ¶ Laurent: Val: Eleg: li. 6. cap: 31. Et alij quidam à verbo fido deduci malunt. Vel denique ab Heb: פִּתָּה pittah, i. persuadére, mutat à primâ literâ. Nihil aliud est Fides quàm certa & indubitata rei alicujus persuasio. Est enim substantia sperandarum rerum, argumentum non apparentium. B. gheloof. T. glaub. Sax: glofe, seu vt olim loue, ab Heb: לָבַב labab, i. cordè sapuit: hinc לֵבָב lebab & לֵב leb, i. cor, mens, intellectus. Est etenim mentis actus per Spiritum Sanctum illustratæ, fides, in oculos haud quaquam incurrens; sed in imo pectore sedem sibi figens. Alludit etiam ad λείβω, i. libo, sacrificio, quòd fidei argumentum est: hinc λοιβή, i. libamentum, 2. ad λάω, i. fruor: Per fidem namque diuinis beneficijs fruimur, 3. ad χαλεπὸν, i. arduum ac difficile. Non enim vulgare negotium est fides (2. Thess. 3. vers: 2.) nec versatur nisi circa ea, quæ omnem excedunt humanæ rationis ingenijque captum ac modum, 4. ad ὄλβ©, (per metaph) i. beatitudo, fœlicitas opum præsidio fulta: quia nempe beatos præstat fides. Tandem nescio an optima sit non hæc tam allusio, quàm Etymologia, quæ suppetit ex Heb. לָוָה lauah, quod significat mutuò accipere: ¶ Prout alma fides cælestia nobis mutuò communicat bona. Deinde significat adhærescere, sociari: quia sola fides nos Christo agglutinat atque associat, ¶ Heluig: Heb: אָמְנָה omnah, אֱמוּנָה emunah ab אָמַן aman, i. verax & fidelis fuit, tutatus est fideliter, enutriuit bona fide, præfuit fideliter. Cognationem habet cum יָמִין jamin, i. dexter: nam dexteritas seu dextra manus non rarò accipitur pro fidelitate. Est enim fidei consecrata, & per dexteram jurabant antiqua tanquam fidei sedem & virtutis ministram. ¶ Auen: Gr. πίστις, à פָּסַס pasit, quòd per transposit. radic, fit à טָפַס tepas. Syriac: אֶתְטְפִיס etespis, i. credidit, fidem adhibuit, persuasus est ¶ Guich: rationem, Vi. suprà.

b Faithfull. G. Fidéle, feál, loyál. I. Fido, fedéle. H. P. Fiél. L. Fídus, a, um, à fido, fidelis, e, à fide. T. getrew trewlich, getrew, à trew, i. fides, fidelitas à trawen, i. fidere. B. ghetrouwe, à trouwe, i. fides, Gr. πιστός, à πίστις, i. fides.

Faiteurs. 4020 ☞ Faitours, seemeth to be a French word antiquated or something traduced. For the moderne French word is Faiseur, i. Factor, a dooer, it is vsed in the Statute anno 7. R. 2. c. 5. And in the euill part, signifying a bad doer. Or it may not improbablie be interpreted an idle liuer, taken from Faitardise, which signifieth a kind of numnesse or sleepy disease, proceeding of too much sluggishnesse, which the Latins call veternus. For in the said Statute it seemeth to be a Synonimon, See Vagabond.

Fealtie. b ☞ Fealtie, Fidelitas, commeth of the French Feaulté, i. Fides, and signifieth in our Common Law an oath taken at the admittance of euery tenent, to be true to the Lord of whom he holdeth his land. And he that holdeth land by this only oath of fealtie, holdeth in the freest manner that any man in England vnder the King may hold: because all with vs that haue fee, hold per fidem & fiduciam, that is, by Fealtie at the least. ¶ Smith de Repub: Angl: lib. 3. c. 8. For Fidelitas est de substantia feudi. ¶ Duar: de feud: c. 2. n. 4. And ¶ Matth: de Affl: decis: 320. n. 4. f. 465. saith, that Fidelitas est substantiale feudi, non seruitium. The particular of this oath, as it is vsed among the Feudists, you may reade well expressed by ¶ Zas: de Feud: p. 7. n. 15. & 16. which is worth the comparing with the vsuall oath taken heere in our part of Britannie. This Fealtie is also vsed in other nations, as the Lombards and Burgundians. ¶ Cassan: consuet: Burgund: f. 419. & 420. And indeed the very first creation of this tenure, it grew from the loue of the Lord towards his followers, so did it binde the tenant to Fidelitie, as appeareth by the whole course of the Feods: and the breach thereof is losse of the Fee. ¶ Duar: de Feud: c. 14. n. 11. ¶ Wesemb: de Feud: c. 15. n. 4. cum seq: Cont: meth: Feud: tit: Quib: mod: Feud: amit: ¶ Hotom: de verb: Feudal: sheweth a double Fealtie: one generall, to be performed by euery subiect to his Prince: the other speciall, vnto their Landlord. P. shall be to you both faithfull and true, and shall owe my fealtie to you for the land that I hold of you, at the termes assigned: So helpe mee God and all his Saints. When a Villeine shall doe Fealtie vnto his Lord, he shall hold his right hand ouer the booke, and shall say thus: Heare you, my Lord A. that I. 4075 ☞ Fee, Feodum, aliàs Feudum, commeth of the French Fief, i. prædium beneficiarium, vel res clientelaris, and is vsed in our Common Law for all those lands which we hold by perpetuall right, as ¶ Hotom: well noteth, verbo Feodum, de verb: feud: our ancient Lawyers either not obseruing from whence the word grew, or at least not sufficiently expressing their knowledge, what it signified among them, from whom they tooke it. Feudum, whence the word Fief or Fee commeth, signifieth in the German language, beneficium cuius nomine opera quædam gratiæ testificandæ causa debentur. ¶ Hotom: disp: c. 1. And by this name goe all lands and tenements, that are held by any acknowledgement of any superioritie to a higher Lord. They that write of this subiect doe diuide all lands and tenements, wherein a man hath a perpetuall estate to him and his heires, into Allodium & Feudum: * Allodium is defined to be euery mans owne land, &c. which he possesseth meerely in his owne right, without acknowledgement of any seruice, or paiment of any rent vnto any other: and this is a propertie in the highest degree. And of some it is called Allaudium, ab a priuat: & laudum vel laudatio, vt sit prædium cuius nullus autor est nisi Deus. Est enim laudare, vel Nonio teste, nominare, quod & Bud: docuit ad l. Herenn. ff. her: instit: Prat: verbo Allaudium. ¶ Hotom: in verb: feud: Feudum is that which we hold by the benefit of another, and in the name whereof wee owe seruice, or pay rent, or both to a superiour Lord. And all our land heere in England, the Crowne land (which is in the Kings owne hands in the right of his Crowne) excepted, is in the nature of Feudum or Fee. For though many a man hath land by descent from his Ancestors, and many others haue dearely bought land for their money, yet is the land of such nature, that it cannot come to any, either by descent or purchase, but with the burden that was laid vpon him who had Nouell Fee, or first at all receiued it as a benefit from his Lord, to him and to all such, to whom it might descend or any way be conueied from him. So that if wee will reckon with our host, as the Prouerbe is, there is no man heere that hath directum dominium, i. the very propertie or demaine in any land, but the Prince in the right of his owne Crowne. ¶ Cambd: Britan: fol: 91. For though he that hath Fee, hath Ius perpetuum, and vtile dominium, yet he oweth a dutie for it, and therefore is it not simply his owne. Which thing I take those words, that wee vse for the expressing of our deepest right in any lands and tenements, to import: For he that can say most for his estate, saith thus: I am seised of this or that land or tenement in my demaine, as of Fee. Seisitus inde in dominico meo vt de feudo: and that is as much as if he said, It is my demaine or proper land after a sort, because it is to me and mine heires for euer, yet not simply mine, because I hold it in the nature of a benefit from another. Fee is of two sorts: Fee absolute, otherwise called Fee simple; and Fee conditionall, otherwise Fee taile. Fee simple, Feudum simplex, is that, whereof wee are seised in these generall words: To vs and our heires for euer. Fee taile, Feudum talliátum, is that whereof we are seised to vs and our heires, with limitation, that is, the heires of our bodie. And Fee taile is either generall or speciall. Generall is, where land is giuen to a man and the heires of his body: the reason whereof is giuen by ¶ Littlet: c. 2. lib: 1. because a man seised of land by such a gift, if he marie one or more wiues, and haue no issue by them, and at the length mary another, by whom he hath issue, this issue shall inherit the land. Fee taile speciall is that, where a man and his wife be seised of lands to them, and the heires of their two bodies: the reason is likewise giuen by Littleton in the same place, because in this case, the wife dying without issue, and hee marying another by whom he hath issue, this issue cannot inherit the land, being specially giuen to such heires. This Fee taile hath the originall from the Statute of Westm: 2. c. 1. which was made Ann. 13. Ed. 1. Yet see ¶ Bract: lib. 2. c. 5. n. 3. his verbis: Item, quædam absoluta & larga, & quædam stricta & coarctata, sicut certis hæredibus. To whom adde ¶ Plowd: casu Willion, fol: 235. a. b. & seq: For before that Statute, all land giuen to a man and his heires, either generall or speciall, was accounted in the nature of Fee, and therefore held to be so firmely in him to whom it was giuen, that, any limitation notwithstanding, he might alienate and sell it at his pleasure: much like that which the Ciuilians call nudum præceptum, binding rather by way of counsell and aduice, then compulsion or restraint. And this thing seeming vnreasonable to the wisedome of our Realme, because so a man meaning well to this or that posteritie of himselfe or his friends, might be foorthwith deceiued of his intention, the said Statute was made for redresse of this inconuenience, whereby it is ordained, that if a man giue lands in Fee, limiting the heires to whom it shall descend, with a reuersion to himselfe or his heires for default, &c. that the forme and true meaning of his gift shall be obserued. Wherefore in what conscience our Lawyers haue inuented meanes so easily to cut off this forme of gift, it is to be considered. Hee that hath Fee then, holdeth of an other by some dutie or other, which is called seruice: And of this seruice, and the diuersitie thereof, see Chiualrie, and Seruice. He that will learne from what fountaine those Feuds or Fees did first spring, let him reade ¶ Anton: Contius de meth: feud: c. 1. where hee shall receiue great light for his guide into so obscure a Dungeon. See Liege. This word Fee is sometime vsed with vs for the compasse or circuit of a Lordship or Manour. ¶ Bract: lib. 2. c. 5. in these words: In eadem villa & de eodem feudo. Thirdly, it is vsed for a perpetuall right incorporeall, as to haue the keeping of Prisons in fee. ¶ Old nat: br: fo: 41. Foster in Fee, eod: fol: 6. Rent granted in Fee, ¶ Anno 28. Ed. 1. Stat: 3. c. 8. Lastly, Fee signifieth a reward or ordinarie dutie, that a man hath giuen him for the execution of his office, or the performance of his industrie in his arte or science: as the Lawyer or Physitian is said to haue his Fee, when he hath the consideration of his paines taken; the one with his Client, the other with his Patient.

Fee Ferme. c ☞ Fee ferme, Feudi firma, is a compound of Fee, whereof see Fee, and Ferme, i. colonia, villa, prædium rusticum. Of Ferme commeth Fermiér du Prince, i. manceps, redemptor publicorum vectigalium, publicanus. Fee ferme signifieth in our Common Law, land held of another in Fee, that is, in perpetuitie to himselfe and his heires, for so much yeerely rent as it is reasonably worth, more or lesse, so it be the fourth part of the Fee worth, old tenures. See Exposit: of the Statute of Glocester, Anno 6. Edw. 1. without homage, fealtie, or other seruices, others then be especially comprised in the feofment. But by Fitzh: it seemeth, that the third part of the value may be appointed for the rent, or the finding of a Chaplaine to sing diuine Seruice, &c. Nat: br fol: 210. c. And the nature of it is thus, that if the rent be behinde and vnpaied for the space of two yeeres, then the feoffour or his heires haue action to recouer the lands as their demesnes. ¶ Brit: c. 66. n. 4. But obserue out of ¶ West: symbol: p. 1. lib. 2. sect: 463. that the feoffement may containe seruices and suit of Court, as well as rent. And the Author of the New termes of Law saith, that Fee ferme oweth fealtie, though not expressed in the feofment, for that fealtie belongeth to all kinds of tenures. This is neere the nature of that, which among the Ciuilians is called ager vectigalis, qui in perpetuum licetur, i. hac lege, vt quamdiu pro eo vectigal pendatur, tamdiu neque ipsis qui conduxerunt, neque ijs qui in locum eorum successerunt, auferri eum liceat. l. 1. ff. Felonia. b ☞ Félonie, Felonia, seemeth to come of the French Felonnie, i. impetuósitas, atrócitas, immisericórdia. Felonia, saith ¶ Hotom: verb: feud: non præcisò contumaciam vasalli in dominum, huiusue in vassallũ perfidiam significat, verùm quoduis capitale facinus. And againe: Felonia Gothis & longobardis dicitur, quod Germanis hodie schelmerey, latinis scelus. Sir Edw: Coke saith thus: jdeò dicta est felonia quia fieri debeat felleo animo. lib: 4. f. 124. b. Hostiens: in summ: tit: de Feud: and others speake of this to this effect, Felónia, aliàs fallónia, est culpa vel injuria, propter quam vasallus amittit feudum. Sed hæc respicit Dominum feudi. Est & alia fallonia, quæ non respicit dominum, scil. quando vasallus interficit fratrem vel filium suum, vel filium fratris, vel aliud crimen commisit, quod paricidij appellatione continetur, & plures aliæ falloniæ, tam respicientes dominum quam alios, propter quas feudum amittitur, ibi notantur. We account any offence felony that is in Degree next vnto petie treason, and compriseth diuers particulars vnder it, as murder, theft, killing of a mans selfe, sodometry, rape, wilfull burning of houses, and diuers such like, which are to be gathered especially out of Statutes whereby many offences are daily made Felonie, that before were not. Felony is discerned from higher offences by this, that the punishment thereof is death. How be it, this is not perpetuall. For petit larcenie, which is the stealing of any thing vnder the valew of Twelue-pence, is Felonie, as appeareth by ¶ Broke tit: Coron: n. 2. His reason is, because the indictment against such a one must runne with these words, felonicè cepit, and yet is this not punished by death, though it be losse of goods. A man may call that Felonie, which is vnder petit treason, and punished by death: And of this there be two sorts, one higher, that for the first time may be releeued by Cleargie, an other that may not. The cognition or knowing them is by Statutes. For Cleargie is allowed, where it is not expresly taken away. Of these matters reade, ¶ Stanf: lib: 1. pl. cor: a fine ca. 2. ad vsq; 39. and the Statutes, ¶ Lamb: Iust: of peace lib: ca. 7. in a Table drawne for the purpose, as also lib: 4. ca. 4. fol: 404. ¶ Crompt: in Iust: pac: fo. 32. &c. Felony is also punished by losse of lands not entayled, and goods or Chattels, as well Reall, as Personall, and yet the Statutes anno 37. H. 8. c. 6. Felony ordinarily worketh corruption of blood, though not, where a Statute ordaineth an offence to be Felony, and yet withall saith, that it shall not worke corruption of blood, as Anno 39. Fifteenth.

c ☞ Fifteenth, decima quinta, is a tribute or imposition of money laid vpon euery Citie, Borough, and other Towne through the Realme, not by the poll, or vpon this or that man, but in general vpon the whole citie or towne: so called because it amounteth to one fifteenth part of that, which the citie or towne hath been valewed at of old. This is now a dayes imposed by Parlament, and euery towne through the Realme, great or lesse, knoweth what a fifteenth for themselues doth amount vnto, because it is perpetuall: whereas the subsidie, which is raised of euery particular mans lands or goods must needs be vncertaine, because the estate of euery seuerall man is so ticklish and vncertaine. And in that regard I thinke that this fifteenth is a rate anciently laid vpon euery towne, according to the land or circuit belonging vnto it. Cuius & meminit Camb: Britan: In steed of the rest take a few f. 168. of Wels in Sommersetshire, he writeth thus. Quo tempore vt testatur censualis Angliæ liber, Episcopus ipsum oppidum tenuit, quod pro quinquaginta hidis geldauit. Et f. 171. of Bath: Geldabat pro viginti hidis, quando schira geldabat. Et f. 181. of old Sarisbury: pro quinquaginta hidis geldabat. And these rates were taken out of Doomes-day booke in the Eschequer, so that this seemed in old time to be a yearly tribute in certaintie, whereas now though the rate be certaine, yet it is not leuyed but by Parlament. Fine, Finis.

b ☞ Fine, Finis, commeth of the French Fin: & Lat: Finis, vt antè, and hath diuers applications in our Common Law, sometime being vsed for a formall or ceremonious Conueyance of Lands or Tenements, or as ¶ West, saith Tit: fines sect: 25. of any thing inheritable, being in esse, tempore finis, to the end to cut off all controuersies ¶ West, part: 2. symb: sect: 1. defineth a Fine in this signification: Couenants made before Iustices and entred of Record. And out of ¶ Glanu le thus lib: 8. cap: 1. Finis est amicabilis compositio & finalis concordia, ex consensu & licentia Domini Regis, vel eius iusticiariorum, & lib: 9. cap: 3. Talis concordia finalis dicitur, eo quod Finem imponit negotio, adeò vt neutra pars litigantiũ ab eo de cœtero possit recedere. Et ex Bracton lib: 5. tract: 5. cap: 28. n. 7. * Finis ideò dicitur Finalis concordia, quia imponit finem litibus, & est exceptio peremptoria. The Author of the New Termes of Law, defineth it to bee a Finall agreement, had betweene persons concerning any Land or Rent or other thing, whereof any suite or Writ is betweene them hanging in any Court. See the new booke of Entries verb: Fines: The Fine is of so high a nature, that ¶ Bract: lib: 3. cap: 7. n. 3. hath these words of it: Item immediatè pertinet ad regem querela finis Factæ in curia Domini Regis & non obseruata. Et est ratio quia nemo potest Finum interpretari nisi ipso Rege, in cuius curia Fines fiunt. Vi. & anno 27. Edw. 1 stat. 1. cap: 1. The Ciuilians would call this solemne contract, transactionem iudicialem de re immobili, because it hath all the properties of a transaction, if it be considered in his originall vse. Vi. ¶ Wesemb: de Transact. For it appeareth by the Writers of the common Law aboue named, that it is nothing, but a composition or concord acknowledged and recorded before a competent Iudge, touching some hereditament or thing immoueable, that erst was in controuersie between those that be parties to the same concord, and that for the better credit of the transaction, being by imputation made in the presence of the King, because it is leuied in his Court, and therfore doth it bind. Women couert, being parties, and others whom ordinarely the Law disableth to transact, onely for this reason, that all presumption of deceit or euill meaning is excluded, where the King is priuie to the acte. This fine hath in it fiue essentiall parts: the originall Writ taken out against the Conizour: the Kings licence giuing the Parties liberty to accord, (for the which he hath a fine called the Kings siluer, being accounted a part of the Crownes reuenew.) Thirdly, the concord it selfe, which thus beginneth: Et est concordia talis &c. Fourthly, the note of the Fine, which an abstract of the originall concord, beginneth in this manner: Se. inter R querentem & S & E vxorem eius deforciantes. &c. Fifthly, the foot of the fine, which is beginneth thus Hæc est finalis concordia facta in Curia Domini Regis apud Westm: à die Paschæ in quindecim dies, anno &c. so as the foote of the fine includeth all contaynig the day, yeare and place, and before what Iustices the Concord was made, ¶ Coke vr. 6. cas: Teye: f. 38. 39. This word Fine, sometime signifieth a somme of money paid for an Income to Lands or Tenements let by lease. Sometimes an amends, pecuniary punishment, or recompence vpon an offence committed against the King and his Lawes, or a Lord of a Maner. In which case a man is said facere finem de transgressione cum Rege &c. Registr: Iud: fol: 25. a. Vi. ¶ Crompt Iusti: of peace fol: 141. b. 143. 144. ¶ Lamb: Eirenarch: lib: 4. cap. 16. fol: 555. But in all those diuersities of vses, it hath but one signification, and that is a Finall conclusion, or end of differences betweene Parties. And in this last sense, where it is vsed for the ending and remission of an offence, ¶ Bract: hath it lib: 2. cap: 15. n. 8. speaking of a Common fine that the Countie paieth to the King, for false iudgments or other trespasses, which is to be assessed by the Iustices in Eyre before their departure, by the oath of Knights and other good men, vpon such as ought to pay it, with whom agreeth the Statute anno 3. b ☞ Forrest, Foresta, is a French word, signifying a great or vast Wood: Lieu Forestiér & sauuáge: Locus syluestris & saltuosus: The writers vpon the common Law define it thus: Foresta est locus vbi feræ inhabitant vel includuntur, glos: in cap: cum dilecti: Extr: de donat: Felin: in cap: Rodolphus, vers: quòd autem Foresta: Extr: de Rescript: speaketh to the same effect. Some other writers doe say, it is called Foresta, q. ferarum statio, vel tuta mansio ferarum. But as it is taken with vs, ¶ Master Mannwood 2. par. of Forest Lawes, cap: 1. n. 1. thus defineth it: A Forrest is a certaine Territory of Woody grounds and fruitfull Pastures, priuiledged for wilde beasts and Fowles of the Forest, Chace, and Warren, to rest and abide in, in the safe protection of the King, for his Princely delight and pleasure, which Territory of ground so priuiledged, is Meered and Bounded with vnremoueable marks, meeres and boundaries, either knowen by matter of Record or else prescription, and also replenished with wilde Beastes of Venerie or chase, and with great Couerts of Vert, for the succour of the said wilde Beasts to haue their aboade in, for the preseruation and continuances of which said place, together with the Vert, and Venison, there are certaine particular Lawes, Priuiledges, and Officers belonging to the same, meete for that purpose that are onely proper vnto a Forrest, and not to any other place. The manner of making Forrest, as the same Author well setteth downe, part 1. pag: 142. is this. The King sendeth out his Commission vnder the broad seale of England, directed to certaine discreet persons, for the view, perambulation, meering and bounding of the place, that he mindeth to Afforest, which returned vnto the Chauncery, Proclamation is made thorowout all the Shire where the ground lieth, that none shall hunt or chase any manner of wild beasts within that precinct, without the Kings speciall licence, after which he appointeth ordinances, lawes and Officers, fit for the preseruation of the Vert and Venison: and so becommeth thus a Forrest by matter of record. The properties of a Forrest are these in speciall, first a Forrest, as it is truly and strictly taken, cannot be in the hands of any but the Kings: the reason is giuen by ¶ Mr. Mannwood, because none hath power to grant Commission to a Iustice in eire for the Forrest, but the King, ¶ Part 1. pa: 87. The second property, bee the courts, as the Iustice seate euery three yeere, the Swaine-moote thrice euery yeere: Idem eodem pag: 90. & part 2. cap: 1. num: 4. & 5. and the attachment once euery forty daies. Idem eodem pag: 92. The third property may be the Officers belonging vnto it, for the preseruation of the Vert and Venison, as first the Iustices of the Forrest, the Warden or Keeper, the Verders, the Foresters, Agistours, Regarders, Bayliffes, Bedels and such like which you may see in their places. See ¶ Manwood part 2. cap: 1. num: 4. & 5. But the chiefe property of a Forrest, both by ¶ M. Mannwood, part 1. pag: 144. and ¶ Crompton pa: 146. is the Swaine-mote, which (as they both agree) is no lesse incident vnto it, then the Court of Pyepowders to a faire. Other courts and Offices are not so requisite, in those Forrests that are in the hands of subiects, because they be not truely Forests: but if this faile, then is there nothing of a Forrest remaining, but it is turned into the nature of a chace. This is otherwise called after the French Franck-pledge, the one being in vse in the Saxons time, the other since the Conquest. Vide, Francke-pledge. That it is all one thing it appeareth by ¶ Mr. Lamberd, in his Explic: of Saxon words, verb: Centuria: and againe in the lawes of King Edward, set out by him fol: 132. in these words, præterea est quædam summa & maxima securitas, per quam omnes statu firmissimo sustinentur, viz: vt vnusquisque stabiliat se sub fideiussionis securitate, quam Angli vocant Freoborghes, soli tamen Eboracenses dicunt eandem (Tienmannatele) quod sonat latinè decem hominum numerum, the tale of ten men. Hæc securitas hoc modo fiebat, quod de omnibus villis totius regni, sub decennali fideiussione debebant esse vniuersi, ita quod si vnus ex decem forisfecerit nouem ad rectum eum haberent, quod si aufugeret, daretur lege terminus ei 31. dierum, vt quæsitus interim & inuentus ad iusticiam Regis addaceretur, & de suo illicio restauraret damnum quod fecerat. c ☞ Gard, custodia, commeth of the French garde, being all of one signification. It signifieth in our Common Law, a custodie or care of defence, but hath diuers applications: sometimes to those that attend vpon the safetie of the Prince, called Yeomen of the Guard: sometime to such as haue the education of children vnder age, or of an Idiot: sometime to a Writ touching Wardship: which Writs are of three sorts, one called a right of Guard or Ward, in French droit de gard. ¶ Fitz: nat: br: f. 139. the second is ejectment de gard. q. 1. de d. f. d a Gard, welt, or border of a garment, à Gal: gardér, i. conseruáre, quia conseruat vestem, because it gards and keepes the garment from tearing. Vi. Border. a Gard or Welt.

e ☞ Gardein, custos, commeth of the French gardién, and yet the German Warden is neere vnto it. It signifieth generally him, that hath the charge or custodie of any person or thing, but most notoriously him, that hath the education or protection of such people as are not of sufficient discretion to guide themselues and their owne affaires, as children and idiots, being indeed as largely extended, as both * tutor & curator among the Ciuilians. For whereas tutor is he, that hath the gouernment of a youth, vntill he come to 14. yeeres of age, and curator hee that hath the disposition and ordering of his substance afterward, vntill he attaine to 21. yeeres, or that hath the charge of a franticke person, during his lunacie, the common Lawyers vse but onely gardien or gardian for both these. And for the better vnderstanding of our common law in this thing, you must know, that as tutor is either testamentarius or a prætore datus ex l. Atilia, or lastly legitimus, so we haue three sorts of gardeines in England, one ordeined by the Father in his last will, an other appointed by the Iudge afterward, the third cast vpon the minor by the law and custome of the land. Touching the first, a man hauing goods and chattels neuer so many, may appoint a gardian to the bodie or person of his childe, by his last will and testament, vntill he come to the age of fourteene yeeres, and so the disposing and ordering of his substance, vntill what time he thinketh meet, and that is most commonly the age of 21. yeers. The same may he doe, if he haue lands to neuer so great a valew, so they hold not in capite of the King, nor of any other Lord by Knights seruice. And in the former case, if the father appoint no gardein to his childe, the ordinarie may appoint one to order his moueables and chatle, vntill the age of 14. yeeres, at which time he may chuse his guardian himselfe, accordingly as by the ciuill law he may his curator. For we hold all one rule with the ciuilians in this case: and that is: inuito curator non datur. And for his lands, if he hold any by copie of court roll, commonly the Lord of the fee appointeth him a guardian, vntill he come to the age of 14 yeeres, and that is one, next of Kind to the minor of that side, that can hope for least profit by his death. If he hold by charter in socage, then the next of Kinde on that side, by which the land commeth not, is the guardian, and hereupon called guardian in socage. And that which is said heere of socage, seemeth to bee true likewise in petit sergeantie ann: 28. Edw. 1. stat. 1. And the reason of this * ¶ Fortescue giueth in his booke, intituled: a Commendation of the politike law of England, c. 44. viz. because there might bee suspition, if the next kinsman on that side, by which the land descendeth should haue the custodie and education of the childe, that for desire of his land he might bee intised to worke him some mischiefe. Lastly, if a man dye seised of lands, holding by Knights seruice, leauing his heyre in minoritie, that is vnder 21. yeeres, the Lord of the fee hath by law, the custodie both of the heire and his land, vntill he come to age. vi. statut: 1. ann: 28. Edw. 1. And the reason of this Fortescue likewise giueth, for that hee to whom by his tenure he oweth Knights seruice, when he can performe it, is likeliest to traine him vp in martiall and ingenuous ingenuous discipline, vntil he be of abilitie. But Polidor Virgil in his Chronicle lib. 15. saith, that it was nouum vectigalis genus excogitatum, to helpe Henry the third, being oppressed much with pouertie, by reason, he receiued the Kingdome much wasted by the wars of his ancestours, and therefore needing extraordinarie helpe to vphold his estate. Yet the 33. chap. of the grand. Custum: maketh mention of this to haue been vsed by the Normans. Here is to be obserued, whether land in Knights seruice held in capite, or of another Lord, or some of the King, and some of another. If of the King, whether of the King alone or not, all is one. For the King in this case is guardian to the heires both person and land by his prerogatiue. ¶ Stawnf: proreg. c. 1. If he hold of a common Lord, it is either of one alone or more. If of one onely, then is he guardian of both person and lands, if of more, then the Lord of whom he holdeth by the elder tenure, is guardian of the person, and euery one of the rest hath the custodie of the land holden of himselfe. If the prioritie of the tenure cannot be discerned, then is he guardian of the person that first happeth him. ¶ Term. of the law. & Stawnf: which f. 19. maketh mention of gardein in feit. and gardein in droit. that is in deed and in law. I take the first to be him that purchased or otherwise obtained the ward of the Lord of whom the land holdeth. The second him, that hath the right by his inheritance and signorie. ¶ Old nat: br. f. 94. Then is there guardein per cause de gard, Who is he that hath the wardship of a minor, because he is guardian of his Lord being likewise in minoritie. ¶ Stawnf: f. 15. Vi. Skene Verb. sig: verb. 5321 ☞ Gauelet, is a speciall and ancient kinde of Cessauit vsed in Kent, where this custome of Gauelkinde continueth: whereby the tenant shall forfeit his lands and tenements to the Lord of whom they are holden, if hee withdraw from his Lord his due rents and seruices, after this manner as followeth.

If any tenant in Gauelkinde, withhold his rent and his seruices of the tenement which hee holdeth of his Lord, let the Lord seeke by the award of his court from three weekes to three weekes, to finde some distresse vpon the tenements vntill the fourth Court, alwaies with witnesses. And if within that time, he can finde no distresse in that tenement, whereby hee may haue iustice of his Tenant, then at the fourth Court let it be awarded, that he shall take that tenement into his hand, in the name of a distresse, as if it were an oxe or a cowe, and let him keepe it a yeere and a day in his hand without manuring it: within which terme if the Tenant come and pay his arrerages, and make reasonable amends for the withholding, then let him haue and enioy his tenement as his auncestors and he before held it: and if hee doe not come before the yeere and the day be past, then let the Lord goe to the next Countie court with his witnesses of his owne Court, and pronounce there this processe to haue further witnesses, and by the awarde of his Court (after the Countie court holden) he shall enter and manure in those lands and tenements as in his owne. And if the Tenant come afterward, and will rehaue his tenements, and hold them as he did before, let him make agreement with the Lord, according as it is anciently said.

Hath he not since any thing giuen, nor hath he not since any thing paied: then let him pay V. li. for his error before hee become tenant or holder againe. See heereof 10. H. 3. Fitz. Cessauit 60. and statute 10. Edw. 2. of Gauelet in London, In the collection of statutes London 2. matter much tending to this purpose, that by this word Gauelet, the Lord shall haue the land for the ceasing of the Tenant. And see W. 2. cap. 21. which giueth Cessauit.

There be some copies that haue the first verse thus written:

Nisith yelde, and nisith gelde.

And others thus:

Nighesith yeld, and nighesith geld.

But these differ not in signification.

Other copies haue it after this sort:

Nigondsith seld, and nigondsith geld.

That is to say, Let him nine times pay, and nine times repay.

Gauelkinde. 5322 ☞ Gauelkind, is by Mr. Lamberd in his exposition of Saxon words, verbo, Terra ex scripto, compounded of three Saxon words, gyfe, eal, cyn, giue all kin: omnibus cognatione proximis data. But M. Verstegan in his restitution of decaied intelligence, cap. 3. calleth it Gauelkind, q. giue all kind, (for kind in low dutch is a childe) that is, giue to each child his part. Nobis autem verisimile etiam habetur gafelkin à gafel siue gafol, quod debitum vel tributum sonat (vt Saxonicè videas ¶ Mat. 18. 25. Luc. 7. 41. & 20. 22.) Et kyn (rectius per c, cyn) i. genus seu familia. Ac si diceretur prædium, debitum vel tributum generi. Morem hunc apud veteres ipsos Germanos inualuisse Tacitus memorat (in Germ: mor:) vndè & nostratibus per Saxones deuenisse non est dubium.

Teutonibus priscis, patrios succedit in agros
Mascula stirps omnis, ne foret vlla potens.

It signifieth in our common Law a custome, whereby the lands of the father is equally diuided at his death amongst all his sonnes, or the land of the brother equally diuided among the brethren, if he haue no issue of his owne, ¶ Kitch. fol 102. This custome is said to be of force in diuers places of England, but especially in Kent, as the said Author reporteth, shewing also the cause why Kentish men rather vse this custome, than any other prouince, viz. because it was a composition made between the Conqueror and them, after all England beside was conquered, that they should enioy their ancient customes, whereof this was one. For M. Camden in his Britannia, pag. 239. saith in expresse words thus: Cantiani ea lege Gulielmo Normanno se dediderunt, vt patrias consuetudines illæsas retinerent, illamque inprimis quam Gauelkind nominant. Hæ terræ quæ eo nomine censentur, liberis masculis ex æquis portionibus diuiduntur, vel fœminis, si masculi non fuerint. adding more worth the noting, viz. Hanc hæreditatem, cùm quintumdecimum annum attigerint, adeunt, & sine Domini consensu, cuilibet vel dando, vel vendendo alienare licet. Hæc filij, parentibus furti damnatis, in id genus fundis succedunt, &c. This custome in diuers Gentlemens lands, was altered at their petition, by Act of Parlament, ann. 31. H. 8. cap. 3. But it appeareth by 18. H. 6. cap. pri. that in those daies there were not aboue thirty or forty persons in Kent, that held by any other tenure. See the new termes, Gauelet and Gauelkind.

And because this marke is a circle made with an iron instrument for that purpose, it seemeth that from thence he taketh his name, of the French Gauchir, that is, to wrie or turne. b ☞ Gentleman (Generosus) seemeth to be made of two words, the one French, (Gentil, i. honestus, vel honesto loco natus) the other Saxon, (Mon) as if you would say, a man well borne. The Italian followeth the very word, calling those Gentilhuomini, whom wee call Gentlemen. The Spaniard keepeth the meaning, calling him Hidalgo, or Hijo d'algo, that is, the sonne of some man, or of a man of reckoning. The Frenchmen call him also Gentilhomme: so that Gentlemen be those, whom their bloud and race doth make noble and knowen. εὐγενεῖς in Greeke, in Latine nobiles. ¶ Smith de Repub: Angl: lib. 1. cap. 20. Vnder this name are all comprised that are aboue Yeomen: so that Noblemen be truly called Gentlemen. But by the course and custome of England, Nobilitie is either maior or minor: the greater containeth all titles and degrees from Knights vpward: the lesser all from Barons downward. ¶ Smith vbi supra, cap. 21. The reason of the name, as I take it, groweth from this, that they obserue gentilitatem suam, that is, the race and propagation of their bloud, by giuing of armes, which the common sort neither doth, nor may doe. For by the coat that a gentleman giueth, he is knowen to be, or not to be descended from those of his name, that liued many hundred yeeres since. Howbeit, that this is neglected, where substance faileth to maintaine the countenance. For many of great birth fall to pouertie, whose posteritie liuing and labouring in want, haue small encouragement to looke after the titles of their ancestors, and so in time slippe into the number of the ignoble sort: yet if they by their vertue or fortune, can againe aduance themselues to sufficient abilitie, the Herald out of his obseruations can restore them to the coat of their progenitours, and now and then helpe them to one, that their ancestors neuer ware. Gentiles homines, see in Tiraquel: de Nobilitate cap: 2. pag: 53. Tully in his Topickes thus saith of this matter. Gentiles sunt, qui inter se eodem sunt nomine ab ingenuis oriundi, quorum maiorum nemo seruitutem seruiuit, qui capite non sunt diminuti. And in the first booke of his Tusc: questions hee calleth Tullum Hostilium, one of the Kings of Rome, gentilem suum.

The Romans called them plurally Feciales, à faciendo. Vi. suprà 5697 a Harold. M. Stow in his Annals deriueth them from Heroes, pag.12. Their Office with vs is described by * Polydore, lib.19. He saith: Habent insuper apparitores ministros, quos Heraldos dicunt: quorum præfectus armorum Rex vocitatur, King at Armes. Hi belli et pacis nuncij, Ducibus, Comitibusque à Rege factis insignia aptant, ac eorum funera curant. They be the Iudges and examiners of Gentlemens armes, they marshall all the solemnities at the coronations of Princes, manage combats, and such like. There is also one and the same vse of them with vs and with the French nation. See ¶ Lupanus, cap: Heraldi. With vs three being the chiefe, are called Kings at armes. And of them * Garter is the principall, instituted and created by Henry the fifth, ¶ Stowes Annals, pag: 584. * whose Office is to attend the Knights of the Garter at their solemnities, and to marshall the solemnities of the funerals of all the greater Nobilitie, as of Princes, Dukes, Marquises, Earles, Vicounts, and Barons. And in ¶ Plowden, casu Reniger & Fogassa, is found, that Edward the fourth graunted the Office of the King of Heralds to one Garter, cum feudis & proficuis ab antiquo, &c. fol.12.b. The next is * Clarentius, ordained by Edward the fourth: for he attaining the Dukedome of Clarence by the death of George his brother, whom he put to death for aspiring to the Crowne, made the Herald, which properly belonged to the Duke of Clarence, a King at armes, and called him Clarentius. * His Office is, to marshall and dispose the funerals of all the lesser Nobilitie, as Knights and Esquires, thorow the Realme of the south side of Trent. The third is * Norroy, or Northroy, à Gal: Nort, i. the north, & Roy, i. a King: whose Office is the same on the North side of Trent, that Clarentius hath on this side, as may well appeare by his name, signifying the Northerne King, or King of the North parts. b ☞ Hue and crie, Hutesium & Clamor, come of two French words (Huér, and Criér) both signifying to shout or crie aloude. This signifieth a pursuite of one hauing committed felonie by the high way, for if the partie robbed, or any in the company of one murdered or robbed, come to the Constable of the next towne, and will him to raise Hiew and Crie, or to make pursuite after the offendour, describing the partie, and shewing as neere as he can, which way he is gone: the Constable ought forthwith to call vpon the Parish, for aide in seeking the felon: and if he be not found there, then to giue the next Constable warning, and he the next, vntill the offender be apprehended, or at the least, vntill he be thus pursued to the sea side. Of this reade Bract: lib. 3. tract: 2. cap: 5. Smith de repub. Angl: lib: 2. cap: 20. and the stat: An: 13. Ed. 1. stat of Winchester, cap: 3. & à 28. Ed: 3. cap. 11. & Anno 27. El: cap: 13. The Normans had such a pursuite with a Crie after offenders, as this is, which they called Haro: whereof you may reade the Grand Custumarie, cap: 54. Some call it * Harol: the reason whereof they giue to be this. That there was a Duke of Normandie called Rol, a man of great iustice and seueritie against grieuous offenders: and that thereupon when they follow any in this pursuite they crie Ha-Rol, as if they should say, Ah Rol, where art thou that wert wont to redresse this, or what shouldest thou doe against these wretches, if thou now wert liuing. In which case, they that are within hearing must make pursuite, or pay a fine. Or that may come from Hariér, i. flagitare, inquietare, vrgere, to vexe, trouble, or molest sometime. Hue is vsed alone, ¶ Anno 4. Edw. 1. Stat. 2. This the Scots call Hutesium: and M. Skene verbo Huesium, saith, that it commeth of the french Oyez, i. audite: making one etymologie of this and the crie vsed before a Proclamation. * The manner of their hue and crie, as he there describeth it, is that if a robberie bee done, a horne is blowne, and an outcrie made: after which, if the partie flie away, and not yeeld himselfe to the Kings Bayliffe, hee may bee lawfully slaine, and hanged vp vpon the next gallowes. Of this Hue and Crie, see Cromptons Iustice of peace. fol. 160. b.

And for better vnderstanding of this point, it is to be knowne, that there be * three maner of trials in England: one by Parlament, another by battle, and the third by Assise or Iurie, ¶ Smith de repub: Angl: lib: 2. cap. 5. 6. 7. quem quære, & vide etiam Combat, & Parlament. The triall by Assise or Iurie (be the action ciuill or criminall, publike or priuate, personall or reall, is referred for the fact to a Iurie: and as they finde it, so passeth the iudgement. This Iurie, though it appertaine to most courts of the Common Law, yet is it most notorious in the halfe yeere Courts of the Iustices errants, commonly called the great Assises, and in the quarter Sessions, and in them it is most ordinarily called a Iurie: and that in ciuill causes, whereas in other Courts it is oftener termed an Enquest, and in the Court Baron the * Homage. Such as they doe approoue, if they touch life and death, are further referred to another Iurie to be considered of, because the case is of such importance: but others of lighter moment, are vpon their allowance, without more adoe, fined by the bench, except the partie trauerse the inditement, or chalenge it for insufficiencie, or remooue the cause to a higher Court by certiorari: in which two former cases it is referred to another Iurie, and in the latter transmitted to the higher. ¶ Lamb: Eiren: l. 4 c. 7. and presently vpon the allowance of this bill, by the Grand Enquest, a man is said to be indighted. * Quare Iustice & non Iudex.
c-1 ☞ Iustice, Iusticiarius, signifieth him that is deputed by the King, to doe right by way of iudgement. The reason why he is called * Iustice, and not Iudex, is, because in auncient time the Latine word for him was Iusticia, and not Iusticiarius, as appeareth by ¶ Glan: lib. 2. cap: 6. Roger Houeden, parte poster: suorum annalium, fol: 413. a. and diuers other places: which appellation we haue from the Normans, as appeareth by the great Custumarie, cap. 3. Men of this function should hereby consider, that they are (or ought to be) not Iusti in their iudgements, but in abstract, ipsa iusticia. Another reason why they are called Iusticiarij, and not Iudices, is, because they haue their authoritie by deputation, as Delegates to the King, and not iure magistratus: and therefore cannot depute others in their stead, the Iustice of the Forest only excepted, who hath that libertie especially giuen him by the statute ¶ Anno 32. H 8. ca. 35. For the Chanceller, Marshall, Admirall, and such like, are not called Iusticiarij, but Iudices. Of these Iustices you haue diuers sorts in England, as you may perceiue heere following. The manner of creating these Iustices, with other appertenances, reade in Fortescue cap. 51.

Iustice of the Kings Bench, i. L. chiefe Iustice of Engl.
c-2 ☞ Iustice of the Kings bench, Iusticiarius de Banco Regis, is a Lord by his office, and the chiefe of the rest: wherefore he is also called Capitalis Iusticiarius Angliæ. His office especially is, to heare and determine all plees of the Crowne: that is, such as concerne offences committed against the crowne, dignitie, and peace of the King: as treasons, felonies, mayhems, and such like, which you may see in ¶ Bracton lib: 3. tract: 2. per totum: and in ¶ Stawnf: treatise, intituled The plees of the crowne, from the first chapter to the 51. of the first booke. But either it was from the beginning, or by time it is come to passe, that hee with his assistance heareth all personall actions, and reall also, if they bee incident to any personall action depending before them. Vi. ¶ Crompt: Iurisdict: fol: 67. &c. Of this Court Bract: lib: 3. cap: 7. num: 2. saith thus: Placita verò ciuilia in rem & personam in Curia Domini Regis terminanda, coram diuersis Iusticiarijs terminantur: & illarum curiarum habet vnam propriam, sicut aulam regiam, & Iusticiarios capitales qui proprias causas Regis terminant, & aliorum omnium per querelam vel per priuilegium siue libertatem: vt si sit aliquis qui implacitari non debeat, nisi coram Domino Rege. This Iustice, as it seemeth, hath no patent vnder the broad seale. For so Crompton saith vbi suprà. He is made only by Writ, which is a short one to this effect: Regina Iohanni Popham Militi salutem. Sciatis quod constituimus vos Iusticiarium nostrum capitalem, ad placita coram nobis terminandum, durante beneplacito nostro. Teste &c. So the 12. yeare of his Maiesties raigne, Iacobus Rex Edwardo Coke Militi. Vi. Coke. And Bracton in the place now recited, speaking of the common plees, saith, that sine waranto iurisdictionem non habet: which I thinke is to be vnderstood of a Commission vnder the great seale. * This Court was first called the Kings Bench, because the King sate as Iudge, in it, in his proper person, and it was mooueable with the Court. Vi. ¶ Anno 9. H. 3. cap. 11. More of the iurisdiction of this Court, vi. in Crompton vbi suprà. Vide Kings bench. The oath of the Iustices, see in the Statute, An. 18. Ed. 3. Stat: 4. Lo: chiefe Iustice of the common pleas
d ☞ Iustice of common pleas, (Iusticiarius communium placitorum) is also a Lord by his office, and is called Dominus Iusticiarius communium placitorum: and he with his assistants originally did heare and determine all causes at the common Law, that is, all ciuill causes betweene common persons, as well personall as reall, for which causes it was called the Court of common pleas, in opposition to the plees of the Crowne or the Kings plees, which are speciall, and pertayning to him only. Of this and the iurisdiction hereof, Vid. Cromptons Iurisdiction, fol. 91. This Court was alwaies setled in a place, as appeareth by the Statute, ¶ An. 9. H. 3. cap. 11. Camden in his Britania in English, Pag. 476. in the title of Northfolke thus writeth, Hales-Halle onely memorable for his ancient owner, Sir Iames Hobart Atturney generall, and of the priuie Counsell to King Henrie the seuenth (by him dubbed Knight at such time as he created Henrie his sonne Prince of Wales) who by building from the ground the fair Church at Lodden, being his Parish Church, also S. Olaues bridge ouer Waueney, that diuideth Norfolke from Suffolke: likewise the Causey thereby, and other workes of pietie, deserued well of the Church, his Countrie, and Common-weale, and planted three houses of his owne issue, out of the second thereof this Sir Henrie Hobart his great grand-child, late Atturney Generall to our Soueraigne King IAMES is lineally descended. So that Sir Iames was Atturney generall and priuie Counseller to K. Henrie, and Sir Henrie Atturney generall to K. IAMES, I haue further heard, that when the charges of the building of the said Church was cast vp, and likewise the charge of the building the Bridge, and of the Causey thereby, there was but only three halfe pence betweene the cost of the one and charge of the other: so that these three made three halfe pence difference.

Iustice in eyre of the Forest.
e ☞ Iustice of the Forest (Iusticiarius Forestæ) sometimes called Iustice in Eyre of the Forest, is also a Lord by his office, and hath the hearing and determining of all offences, within the Kings Forest, committed against Venison or Vert. Of these there be two, whereof the one hath iurisdiction ouer all the Forests, on this side Trent, the other of all beyond. The chiefest point of their iurisdiction, consisteth vpon the articles of the Kings charter, called Charta de Foresta, made An. 9. H. 3. which was by the Barons hardly drawen from him, to the mitigation of ouer cruell ordinances made by his Predecessours. Reade M. Camdens Britan. See Protoforestarius. The Court where this Iustice sitteth and determineth, is called the Iustice seate of the Forest, held euery three yeares once, whereof you may reade at large in M. Manwoods first part of Forest lawes, pag. 121. & 154. & pag. 76. He is sometimes called Iustice in Eyre of the forest. See the reason in Iustice in Eyre. This is the only Iustice that may appoint a Deputie per statutum, anno 32. IAMES yet in this office doth continue * Charles Lord Howard, Baron of Effingham, Earle of Nottingham, High Admirall of England, Ireland, Normandie, Aquitaine, and Calais, and Captaine generall of the Nauie royall, and of all the Castles, and Fortresses maritimate of England, Chiefe Iustice of Eaux, Forests, and Chaces cis Trentum, on this side Trent, Lieutenant gouernour of Sussex, and Surrey, Constable of the Castle of Windsor, Steward of the Honour of Hampton Court, And the most ancient Knight of the Garter, and Priuie Councellour of this state. Hee was the sonne of the Lord William Howard Baron of Effingham, Gouernour of Calais, High Admirall of England to Queene Marie, and Lord Chamberlaine, and Lord Priuie seale to Queene Elizabeth, which William was third sonne of * Thomas Lo: Howard, Baron Segraue, Mowbray and Bruse, Earle of Surrey, Duke of Northf: High Treasurer, and high Marshall of England to King Henrie the eight, and the greatest Captaine in his time. This Charles in his youth serued the French King Henrie the second in Metz, besieged by the Emperour Charles the fift, Anno Dñi. 1552. And hee likewise went ouer into Spaine with the Earle of Bedford, at which time King Philip the second was conducted into England, to marrie Queene Marie. He was generall of the horse in the Armie sent against the Rebels in the North, 1569. He hath borne with great honour the highest offices in this Kingdome, viz. Lord high Steward, high Constable, and high Marshall of England, as succeeding his ancesters in honors, and adding to his honourab: fathers vertues, this title of Earle of Nottingham, in regard of his seruice (as appeareth in the Charter of his creation) right valiantly and faithfully performed against the Spanish Armada, termed la flota y Armada invincible, in the yeare 1588. at which time he was Generall of the Nauie, as also at the winning of Cales in Spaine, where hee was Lord generall of the forces by Sea, and ioyntly in commission with the Earle of Essex of those by Land. In which two most waightie and most dangerous emploiments in warre against the Spaniards, he was in both a most fortunate and victorious Generall, so in the first Treatise of Peace betweene England and Spaine, he was thought fit by his Maiestie, to be sent as a most honorable Embassadour thither, in full confirmation, and establishing thereof: where with great magnificence, with his Honorable followers, to the Spaniards admiration, he performed the same, as in particular you may reade in the true Relation thereof at large set downe, and printed by * that Iudicious Gentleman M. Iustice in Eyre

h ☞ Iustices in Eyre, (Iusticiarij itinerantes) are so tearmed of the French (Erre, i. iter, a journey) which is an old word, as (a grand erre, i. magnis itineribus) prouerbially spoken. The vse of these in auncient time, was to send them with Commission into diuers Counties, to heare such causes especially, as were tearmed the plees of the Crowne: and therefore one may imagine they were so sent abroad for the ease of the subjects, who must else haue come to the Kings Bench, if the cause were too high for the Countie Court. They differed from the Iustices of Oyer and Terminer, because they (as is aboue said) were sent vncertainely, vpon any vprore or other occasion in the Countrey: but these in Eyre (as M. Gwin setteth downe in the Preface to his Reading) were sent but euery seuen yeare once: with whome, Horne in his Mirrour of Iustices, seemeth to agree, lib. 2. and lib. 3. cap. de Iustices in Eyre, where he also declareth what belonged to their Office. These were instituted Hen: 2. as M. Camden in his Britan: witnesseth. And Roger Houeden, parte poster. annal. fol. 313. b. hath of them these words: Iusticiarij itinerantes constituti per Henricum secundum, i. qui diuisit regnum suum in sex partes, per quarum singulas tres Iusticiarios itinerantes constituit, quorum nomina hæc sunt, &c. * And my Lord Coke to the Reader in the ninth part of his Reports citeth out of a very auncient and learned Treatise of the Lawes and Vsages of this Kingdome, whereby this Realme was gouerned about 1100. yeares past, entituled by him the mirrour of Iustices, cap. 1. §. 3. thus: Iusticiarij Itinerantes or Iustices in Eyre, Commissioners itinerant, assigned to haue conusance of Plees. In aide of such Eyres, the Sherifes Turnes and Viewes of Franck-pledges are necessarie. And all those whome the good men of such Enquests did endite of a capitall offence, the Kings were wont to destroy without any answere (which vsages are yet in practise in Almaigne:) But by warrant of Pitie and Mercie (because the frailtie of man cannot refraine from sinne, vnlesse God of his especiall grace giue him abstinence) it is accorded, that no Appellée nor Inditée shall be destroyed without answere.

Kings Bench.

e Kings Bench, Bancus Regius, is the Court or iudgement seat where the King of Englang was wont to sit in his owne person: and therefore was it moueable with the Court or Kings houshold, and called Curia domini Regis, or Aula Regia, ¶ as Mr. Gwine reporteth in the Preface to his Readings: and that, in that and the Exchequer, which were the onely Courts of the King, vntill H. 3. his dayes, were handled all matters of Iustice, as well ciuill, as criminall, whereas the Court of common plees might not be so by the statute. ¶ An: 9. H. 3. cap: 11. or rather by M. Gwins opinion, was presently vpon the graunt of the great Charter seuerally erected. This Court of the Kings bench, was wont in ancient times to be especially exercised in all criminall matters and plees of the Crowne, leauing the handling of priuate contracts to the County-court. ¶ Glanuil: lib: 1. cap: 2. 3. 4. & lib: 10. cap: 18. Knights of the Garter.
c ☞ Knights of the Garter, Equites Garterij, commeth of the French Iartiére or Iartiér, i. periscelis, fascia poplitaria. It signifieth with vs both in diuers statutes and otherwise, one especiall Garter, being the ensigne of a great and noble Societie of Knights, called Knights of the Garter. And this is κατὰ ἐξοχὴν, propter excellentiam, as Poeta among the Grecians was Homer, among the Romans Virgill, because they were of all others the most excellent. This high order (as appeareth by M. Camden and many others) was first instituted by that famous * King Edward the Third, vpon good successe in a skirmish, wherein the Kings garter (I know not vpon what occasion) was vsed for a token. But I know that Polidore Virgill casteth in another suspition of the originall: his grounds by his owne confession grew from the vulgar opinion: yet as it is, thus take it as I haue read it. Edward the Third, King of England, after he had obtained many great victories, King Iohn of France, King Iames of Scotland, being both prisoners in the Tower of London at one time, and King Henry of Castile, the bastard expulsed, and Don Pedro restored by the Prince of Wales, and Duke of Aquitanie, called the Blacke Prince; did vpon no weightie occasion first erect this order in Anno 1350. viz: * He dauncing with the Queene and other Ladies of the Court, tooke vp a garter that happened to fall from one of them: whereat some of the Lords smiling, the King said vnto them, that ere it were long, he would make that Garter to be of high reputation, and shortly after instituted this order of the Blew Garter, which euery one of the order is bound daily to weare on the left legge, being richly decked with gold and pretious stones, with a buckle of gold, and hauing these words written, or wrought vpon it: * Honi soit qui mal y pense: which is Shame take him that thinketh euill. M. Fearne in his glorie of generositie agreeth with M. Camden, and expreslier setteth downe the victories, whence this Order was occasioned. Whatsoeuer cause of beginning it had, it need not seeme a base originall, seeing as one saith, Nobilitas sub amore iacet, Nobilitie lies vnder loue. The order is inferiour to none in the world, consisting of * 26. martiall and heroicall Nobles, whereof the King of England is the chiefe, and the rest be either Nobles of the Realme, or * Princes of other Countries, friends and confederates with this Realme, the honour being such, as Emperours and Kings of other Nations haue desired and thankefully accepted it. He that will reade more of this, let him repaire to M Camden, and Polidore, and M. Fern, fol. 120. vbi suprà. * The Ceremonies of the chapter proceeding to election, of the inuestures and robes, of his installation, of his vow, with all such other obseruances, see in M. Segars new booke, intituled Honour militarie and ciuill, li. 2. ca. 9. fo. 65. There are depending on this honourable Order * 26. poore Knights, that haue no other sustenance or meanes of liuing but the allowance of this house, which is giuen them in respect of their daily praier to the honour of God, and (according to the course of those times) of S. George. There be also certaine Officers belonging to this order, as namely the * Prelate of the Garter, which Office is inherent to the Bishop of Winchester for the time being, the Chauncellor of the Garter, * the Register, who is * alwaies Deane of Windesour. * The principall King at armes, called Garter, quem vide in Harold, whose chiefe function is to manage and marshall their solemnities at their yeerely feasts and installations. Lastly, the Vsher of the Garter, which (as I haue heard) belongeth to an Vsher of the Princes chamber, called Blacke rod. The site of this College, is the Castle of Windesour, with the Chapell of S. George * erected by Ed. 3. and the Chapter-house in the said Castle. * Hospinian in his booke de origine & progressu Monachatus, maketh mention of this honourable Order, terming it by ignorance of our tongue, Ordinem Carteriorum Equitum, and Charteriorum Equitum: which you may reade cap. 307. as also Bernardus Girardus in his historie, lib. 15. c. 185. * Garter signifieth also the principall King at Armes among our English Harolds, created by K. Gr. βανδοφόρος, i. banderiam ferens, quem Persæ appellabant Satrapam, hominem generosum & insignem. Which dignitie is more then an ordinarie Knight, equall with that of King Iames lately erected of Baronets, yet inferiour to a Baron. It was giuen at the first by the Kings of England and France to such gentlemen, that valiantly carried themselues in two royall battels, or to such as had tenne vassals, and meanes to maintaine a troupe of horses at their owne charge. ¶ M. Skene in his booke de verb: signif: deriued this word from Banner and rent. But M. Cambden from the high Dutch Banner herres, i. Lords or masters of Banners. ¶ Sir Thom. Smith de Repub. Angl. lib. 1. c. 18. saith, that a Banneret is a Knight made in the fields with the ceremonies of the cutting of the point of his standard, and making it as it were a Banner: and they being before Batcheler Knights, are now of greater degree, allowed to desplay their armes in a Banner in the Kings armie as Barons doe. Of creating a Knight Banneret, you may reade more in M. Seagar Norrey his booke. M. Camden saith, he cannot fetch the antiquitie of these Knights from further, then King Edward the Third, when Englishmen, as hee there saith, were renowned for Chiualrie. Worthie the remembrance it is, to set downe heere out of Froissard the very manner and forme whereby Iohn Chandos a braue and noble Warriour in his time, was made a Banneret, what time as Edward Prince of Wales was to fight a field in the behalfe of Peter King of Castile, against Henry the bastard and the French. The said Iohn Chandos came vnto the Prince, and deliuered into his hands his owne Banner folded and rolled vp, with these words: My Lord, this is my Banner, may it please you to vnfold and display it, that I may aduance it in the field this day: for I haue by Gods fauour reuenues sufficient thereunto. The Prince then tooke the Banner into his hands, vnfolding the same, deliuered the same againe vnto him with these or such like words: Sir Iohn in the name of God, who blesse this daies seruice of yours, beare your selfe manfully, and giue proofe what a Knight you are. Hauing thus receiued the Banner, to his companies hee cheerfully went: My fellow souldiers, said he, behold there is my banner displaied, and yours in case you defend it couragiously, &c.

Knights of the Bath.
e ☞ Knights of the Bath. G. Cheualiérs des banis (Milites balnei, vel de balneo) are the order of Knights made within the lists of the Bath, girded with a sword, in the ceremonies of his creation. ¶ Ferns glorie rie of generositie, pag: 105. These are spoken of, ¶ An. 8. Ed: 4. cap. 2. But I haue hard that these Knights were so called of a Bath, into the which (after they had beene shaued and trimmed by a Barber) they entred, and thence, the night before they were Knighted, being well bathed, were taken againe by two Esquires, commanded to attend them, dried with fine linnen cloaths, and so apparelled in an Hermits gray weed, with a hood, and a linnen coife, and booted with all, and led thorow many solemne Ceremonies: viz. Confessing their sinnes, watching and praying all night in a Church or Chappell, * as though they would begin their warfaire in employing their seruice for God especially, with many other, to the order of Knight-hood the next day. So that by the same reason, these seemed to be termed knights of the Bath, by which Knights made out of the field in these dayes, are called * Knights of the Carpet, because in receiuing their order, they commonlie kneele vpon a Carpet.

* Vi. Camd: Britan: in English, pag. 172.

f ☞ Knights of the order of S. Iohn of Ierusalem (Milites S. Iohannis Hierosolymitani) * were otherwise called the Knights of the Rhodes, being an order of Knight-hood, that had beginning about the yeare of the Lord, 1120. Honorius then Pope of Rome. ¶ Cassanæus de gloria mundi, parte 9. Consider: 4 and M. Fern, in his glorie of Generositie, pag: 127. They had their primary foundation and chiefe abode first in Ierusalem, and then in Rhodes, where many of them liued vnder their Principall, called the M. of Rhodes: vntill they were expelled thence by the Turke, An: 1523. sithence which time, their chiefe seat is at Malta, where they haue done great exploits against the Infidels, but especially in the yeare 1595. These, though they had their beginning and especialest abode first at Hierusalem, and next in Rhodes, yet they encreased both in number and reuenues, liuing after the order of the Friers, vnder the rule of S. Augustine, and were dispersed into France, Spaine, Aluern, Campany, England, and Ireland. Of these mention is made in the Stat: ¶ An. 25. H. 8. cap: 2. An: 26. eiusd. cap: 2. And it appeareth that they in England had one generall Prior, that had the gouernment of the whole order within England and Scotland. ¶ Reg. Orig: fol: 20. b. But toward the end of H. 8. his dayes, they in England and Ireland being found to adhere to the Bishop of Rome against the King, were suppressed, and their lands and goods referred by Parliament to the Kings disposition. ¶ An. 32. Knights of the Temple.
h ☞ Knights of the Temple, otherwise called Templers, Templarij, was an order of Knight-hood, created by Gelasius the Pope, about the yeare of our Lord, 1117. and so called, because they dwelt in a part of the buildings belonging to the Temple. These in the beginning dwelling not farre from the Sepulchre of the Lord, entertained Christian strangers and Pilgrimes charitably, and in their armour led them thorow the Holy-land, to view such things, as there were to bee seene, without feare of Infidels adioyning. This order continuing and encreasing by the space of two hundred yeares, was farre spread in Christendome, and namely heere in England. But at the last, the chiefe of them at Ierusalem, being (as some men say) found to fall away to the Sarazens from Christianitie, and to abound in many vices, the whole order was suppressed by Clemens Quintus, which was about King Edward the 1. dayes, and their substance giuen partly to the Knights of the Rhodes, and partly to other Religious. ¶ Cassan: de gloria mundi, part. 9. Consid. 5. and see An. 1. Ed. 1. cap. 42. Others write, that in truth their destruction grew from cleauing to the Emperour, against the Pope of Rome, whatsoeuer was pretented. ¶ Ioach: Steph: de Iurisd: lib. 4. cap. 10. num. 18. Hen. 5. cap. 1. vpon the Kings writ, to be sent to the Parliament, and there by their counsell to assist the common proceedings of the whole Realme. * These, when euery man that had a Knights fee, were customarily constrained to be a Knight, were of necessitie to be milites gladio cincti, for so runneth the tenour of the writ at this day. ¶ Crompt: Iurisd: fol. 1. But now there being but few Knights, in comparison of former times, and many men of great liuing in euery Countie, Custome beareth that Esquires may be chosen to this office, so that they be resident within the Countie. For the obseruations in the choice of these Knights, see the Statutes, and the new booke of Entries, verbo Parlament, num. 1. Their expences, during the Parlament, are borne by the Countie or Shire. ¶ An. 35. H. 8. cap. 11.

* Heretofore he that had a Knights fee, might be constrained to be a Knight. ¶ An. 1. Ed. 1. cap. 1. Vide infra Knights fee.

Bachelor Knights.
m ☞ Bachelor Knights. Vi. sub voce, Bachelor, Vi. 7522. a Knight cum alijs linguis: but heere thus much as touching those Knights, who simplie without any addition be called Knights, howsoeuer they are in order ranged last, yet by institution they be first, and of greatest antiquitie. For as the Romans, a gowned Nation, gaue vnto them that were entring into mans estate, togam virilem, a virile or plaine gowne without welt or guard: euen so the Germans our Ancestors, bestowed vpon their yong men, whom they iudged meete to manage Armes, armour and weapons, which * Cornelius Tacitus will informe you of, in these wordes: The manner was not for any one to take Armes in hand, before the State allowed him sufficient for martiall seruice, and then in the very assembly and Councell either some one of the Princes or the Father of the yong man (which yong man they termed * Knecht) or some of his Kinsfolke did furnish him with a shield and a Iaueline: This with them standeth in steede of a virile gowne, and this is the first honour done to youth, before this, they seeme to be but part of a priuate house, but now within a while members of a Common-weale. And seeing that such militarie yong men, they termed in their language (which is the mother of ours) Knechts, from them I deeme the originall of name and institution also ought to be fetched, as from a Noble and most ancient Nation. This was the first and most simple manner of creating a Knight, this the Lombards, this the Frankes, now French, this our Countrimen all descending out of Germanie in old time vsed * Paulus Diaconus lib. 1. ca. 22. reporteth thus among the Lombards, this is the custome that the Kings sonne dineth not with his father, except he receiue Armes and Knighthood before, from some King of forraine Nation, and * Io: Salisburiensis in his Polycraton, writeth thus, A solemne custome was taken vp and vsed, that the very day when one was to bee honored with the girdle of Knighthood, he should solemnely goe to Church, and by laying and offering his sword vpon the Altar, vow himselfe (as it were) by making a solemne profession to the seruice of the Altar, that is to say, promise perpetuall seruice and obsequious dutie vnto the Lord. * Peter of Blois also writeth thus, Epist. 94. At this day yong Knights and Souldiers receiue their Sword from the Altar, that they might professe themselues Sonnes of the Church, and to haue taken the Sword for the defence of the Poore, for punishment and reuenge of Malefactours, and deliuerie of their Countrie. But in processe of time (saith he) it is turned cleane contrarie. For in these daies since they are become adorned with the Knights cincture, presently they arise and rage, &c. And for the ceremonie to be * girt with a Sword, it may seeme to haue proceeded from the militarie discipline of the Romans, because as they deemed it vnlawful to fight with their enemy before they were bound to their militarie oath, by a drawen Sword: euen so our forefathers thought they might not goe to warfare lawfully, before they were by this ceremonie lawfully authorised: according to which wee reade that William Rufus, King of England, was dubbed Knight by Lanfranck the Archbishop. * Afterwards Kings were wont to send their sonnes vnto the neighbour Princes to receiue Knighthood at their handes: thus was our K. Henrie the second sent vnto Dauid K. of Scots, and Malcolme K. of Scots vnto our K. Henrie the second, and our K. Edw. the first, vnto the K. of Castile, to take of them militarie or virile Armes, for these termes and phrases they vsed in that Age for the Creation of a Knight: Then it was also, that besides the Sword and Girdle, * gilt Spurres were added for more ornament: whereupon at this day they are called in latine Equites Aurati, moreouer they had the priuiledge to vse and weare a signet: which before they were dubbed Knight, in those daies, they could not doe, as may be gathered out of Abendon booke. In Ages ensuing, Knights were made by their wealth and state of liuing: For they which had a great Knights fee, that is sixe hundred and foure score Akers of Land, claimed as their right, the ornament and badges of Knighthood, nay rather vnder * H. 3. they were compelled to bee Knights as many as in the reuenewes of their Land as they then went 15li. by the yeare, to the end, England, as well as Italie, might be strengthened with Chiualrie, and they that would not, or were not able to maintaine the honour of Knighthood, should fine for it, and pay a peece of money, this was an Edict by the K. in the yeare 1256. Hence it is that in the K. Records, we meet so often with this. For respit of Knighthood, A. de N. I. H. &c. Also such like presentments from the Iurors and sworne Enquest, as this, A. de D. holdeth an entire and whole fee, is at full age, and not yet Knight, therefore in misericordia, that is, to be fined at the Kings pleasure. Vid. infra in Knights fee. * The manner of dubbing Knights in these our daies, he that receiueth this dignitie kneeleth downe, then the King with his sword drwaen, slightly smiteth him on the shoulder, speaking to him these wordes withall in french, Sois Cheualiér au nom de Dieu, that is, be thou a Knight in the name of God, and afterwards he saith moreouer, Auancéz Cheualiér, that is, Arise Sir Knight; this Knighthood with our Auncestours was esteemed an excellent and glorious degree, as a noble reward to braue minded men, and such as desired, glorie and honour, then kept they carefully faith and troth, and it was sufficient if they vndertooke or promised ought * vpon the faith of a Knight, as also yet to this day vpon the faith of a souldier, they were then farre from base gaine and lucre, &c. What manner of paiment or aide is to be leuied for Knights fees, when the Prince, the Kings eldest sonne, is to be made Knight, and inuested into this honour, &c. see something thereof in the beginning of this Dictionarie, the word ☞ Ayde, the rest I leaue to others to write of, &c. when they had so farre offended, that being to suffer death for the offence, * they were first despoiled of their Ensignes and of their degree, viz. their militarie Girdle, vngirted; their Sword, taken away; their Spurres, cut off with a hatched; their Gantlets, plucked from them; their Escutcheon of their Armes reuersed, like as in the degrading of the * Ecclesiasticall order, all the Ecclesiasticall ornaments, Booke, Chalice, and such like are taken away: but these discourses being too tedious for a Dictionarie, whereof I haue beene often taxed, yet will I mislike none that vouchsafeth not so much as the reading of them, only this in this place out of Camden will I adde, that in the * Kings Records are read the names of Knights, of Bachelors, and of Valects, of the Earle of Glocester, and others, wherupon there be who would haue Bachelors called of the french, Bas-Cheualiérs, Low Knights, or Knights of the lowest degree, others of Batailler, to battaile or fight, de quo. b ☞ Lease (Lessa) commeth of the french (laissér, i. linquere, relinquere, omittere, permittere.) It signifieth in our common Law, a dimise or letting of Lands, or tenements, or right of common, or of a rent or any hereditament vnto an other, for terme of yeares or of life, for a rent reserued. And a lease is either written, called a lease by indenture, or made by word of mouth, called a lease paroll. Vi. the new termes of the Law. The partie that letteth this lease, is called the Leassour, and the partie to whom it is let, the Leassee. And a lease hath in it six points: viz. wordes importing a dimise, a leassee named, a commencement from a day certaine, a terme of yeares, a determination, a reseruation of a rent. ¶ Coke vol. 6. Knights case, fol. 55. a. A lease of land is as good without deede as with deede, But a lease for terme of life, it behoueth to giue liuerie and seizen vpon the land, or else nothing shall passe by the graunt, because they be called free houlds. Also a lease of common Rent may not bee good without a deede, but of a Parsonage it is good without deede. ¶ New Termes of law.

The Romans distinguished the dayes in whole Court or Leet dayes: halfe Court dayes, and no Leete dayes. These dayes were called Fásti, à fando, from speaking, because vpon those dayes which were Fasti, the Prætor or chiefe Iustice might lawfully keepe Court, and administer Iustice, which was not done without the speaking of these three words; Do, Dico, Addico, i. I giue, viz: way to action and suites. I speake, viz: the law, I iudge, viz: the matters and the men: quod ad Etym: altius & melius repetit: Vi. infra in ☞ Leete.

b ☞ Leete (Leta) is otherwise called a Law-day. It seemeth to come from the Saxon, Lethe, which, as appeareth by the lawes of King Edward, set out by Mr. Lamb. num. 34. was a Court or iurisdiction aboue the Wapentake or Hundred, comprehending three or foure of them, otherwise called Thryhing, and contained the third part of a Prouince or Shire. Smith, de Repub: Ang: lib. 2. cap. 18. saith, that * Leet or Law-day is all one, and saith, Law in the old Saxon tongue, was called Lathe or * Leete or Law-day vndè or Lage, and so by corruption changing Lathe or Lage into Leete and Law-day, or rather of B. Laet, i. a Countrie Iudge, or Iustice, that medleth with the meaner matters and causes in the Countrie of Laet, a Husbandman, which comes of Laeten, to leaue or to suffer, because, as saith Gl: Specul: Sax: the old Saxons hauing ouercome this Countrie, left it to be tilled by the Country-men, as tributarie to them, or that as Becanus saith, they being freed, or set at libertie, were suffered to till their grounds, and so of Laeten, to suffer or permit, commeth Laet, a Countrie or Husband-man, and Laetbanck, a Countrie Iudgement bench, or seat. These iurisdictions, one and other be now abolished, and swallowed vp in the Countie Court, except they be held by prescription. ¶ Kitchin, fol: 6. or Charter in the nature of a Franchise, as I haue said in (Hundred.) The libertie of Hundreds is rare, but many Lords, together with their Courts Baron, haue likewise Leets adioyned, and thereby to enquire of such transgressions, as are subiect to the enquirie and correction of the Court: whereof you may reade your fill in Kitchin, from the beginning of his Booke, to the fift Chapter: and Briton, cap. 28. But this Court, in whose Manour soeuer it be kept, is accounted the Kings Court, because the authoritie thereof, is originally belonging to the Crowne, and thence deriued to inferiour persons. ¶ Kitchin, fol. 6. Iustice Dyer saith, that this Leete was first deriued from the Sheriffes Turn: fol. 64. And it enquireth of all offences vnder high treason, committed against the Crowne and dignitie of the King: though it cannot punish many, but must certifie them to the Iustices of the Assise, per stat: an. 1. Ed: 3. cap: vlt. Kitchin, fol. 8. But what things be onely inquirable, and what punishable. Vide Kitchin in the charge of a Court Leete, fol. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. Dicitur itaq; sinistrum à sinendo, quia hoc modo sinunt Dij progrediamur fœliciter in negotijs nostris. d ☞ Licence to go to election (Licentia eligendi) Regist: fol. 294. Vid. Congé d'eslire.

e ☞ Licence to arise, licentia surgendi, is a libertie giuen to the Court to a tenent, that is assoyned, de malo lecti, in a reall action. For the law is, that in this case he may not arise out of his bed, or at least go out of his chamber, vntill he haue beene viewed by Knights thereunto appointed; and so vpon view of his sicknesse, haue a day assigned him to appeare, or else lie, vntill he be licensed by the Court to arise. And the reason of this is, because it may appeare, whether he caused himselfe to be essoyned deceitfully, yea or not. And therefore if the Demandant or Plaintife can proue that he be seene out of his chamber, walking vp and downe his grounds, or else going abroad vnto any other place, before he be viewed, or haue licence of the Court, he shall be adiudged to be deceitfully essoyned, and to haue made default. 7928 ☞ Magna Charta, called in English the great Charter, is a Charter conteyning a number of Lawes, ordayned the ninth yeare of H. 3. and confirmed by Ed. 1. The reason why it was termed Magna Charta, was either for that it conteyned the summe of all the written lawes in England, or else that there was an other charter, called the Charter of the Forest, established with it, which in quantitie was the lesser of the two. I reade in Holinshead, that King Iohn to appease his Barons, yeelded to Lawes or Articles of gouernement, much like to this great Charter, but we now haue no auncienter written Law, then this, which was thought to be so beneficiall to the subiects, and a Law of so great equitie, in comparison of those, which were formerly in vse, that King H. 3. was thought but hardly to yeeld vnto it, and that to haue the fifteenth peny of all the moueable goods, both of the spiritualty and temporalty throughout his Realme. ¶ Holinshed, in H. 3. And though this Charter consist not of aboue 37. 7940 ☞ Mainour, aliàs Manour, aliàs Meinoure, or Maner, seemeth to come of the French (Maniére) the manner, It signifieth in the common Law when a theefe hath stollen, and is followed with Hue and Cry, and taken with the manner, that is, hauing the thing stolne about him, that is called the Mainour: and so we say when we finde one doing of an vnlawfull Act, that we tooke him with the Maynour, or Manner. Vide Backberend. It was presented, that a theefe was deliuered to the Vicount, together with the Mainor: and thirdly, ¶ Stawnf: pl. Coron: If a man be indicted, that he feloniously stole the goods of another, where, in truth, they be his owne goods, and the goods be brought into the Court as the mainour, and it be demanded of him, what he saith to the goods, and he disclaime them, though he be quitted of the felonie, he shall lose the goods. And againe, fol. 149. If the defendant were taken with the manour, and the manour be carried to the Court, they in ancient times would arraigne him vpon the manour, without any appeale or inditement. I finde this word vsed in the old Nat: bre: fol. 110. in this sort: where a man maketh a thing by mainour, or leuying, or estopping, in such case he shall haue Assise: where it signifieth handie-labour, and is but an abbreuiation of the French Main-ovrerie, or rather Manouvrerié, i. workmanship with the hands.

7942 ☞ Mainprise (Manucaptio) is compounded of two French words (Main, i. manus, a hand, and prins, i. captus, taken, as it were taken into their hands. It signifieth in our common Law the taking or receiuing a man into friendly custodie, that otherwise is or might be committed to prison, and so vpon securitie giuen for his forth comming at a day assigned: And they that doe thus vndertake for any, * are called Mainpernours, because they doe receiue him into their hands. ¶ Stawnf. pl. Coron. fol. 178. Of this sort is the word * Mainpernable, which signifieth him that hath committed such an offence, as by Law he may be thus bayled: For in many cases a man is not mainpernable: whereof see Broke, tit. Mainprise, per totum: & Fitz. nat: bre: fol. 249. & seq. M. Manwood in the first part of his Forest Lawes, pag. 167. maketh a great difference betweene Bayle and Mainprise. For he that is mainprised (quoth he) is alwaies said to be at large, and to goe at his owne libertie out of ward, after the day is set to mainprise, vntill the day of his appearance. But otherwise it is, where a man is let to baile to foure or two men, by the Lord Iustice in eyre of the Forest, vntill a certaine day. For there he is alwaies accounted by the Law to be in their ward and custodie for the time. And they may, if they will, keepe him in ward, or in prison all that time, or otherwise at their will. So that he that is so bayled, shall not be said by the Law to be at large, or at his owne libertie. Vide Bayle. Mainprise. * Mainpernours. * Mainpernable.
